British, Iranians Called to Meeting On Oil Situation

Light Tanks Patrol Streets to Prevent Demonstrations of Violence

Tehran, Iran, Aug. 6 (P)—British and Iranian representatives were called to a meeting tonight to begin negotiations aimed at a settlement of the critical dispute over the nationalization of Iran of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's holdings. The first session was to be an exploratory one seeking a common ground for further discussions.

Some light tanks patrolled the streets and other precautions were taken against possible violent demonstrations. Today is an Iranian national holiday.

The meeting was arranged at the Shah Gharan Palace, where the British delegation and President Truman's special envoy, W. Averell Harriman, are guests of the shah.

Harriman was not to sit in on the meeting. He made it clear he was not a negotiator and was remaining here only to be of help in the event of disagreements which might threaten the collapse of the talks.

The session started as Iran celebrated her Constitution Day holiday — with patriotic demonstrations banned in fear of possible violent demonstrations which could snare the oil talks.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh acted after extremists denounced his agreement to begin talks with Richard Stokes, British lord privy seal, Wednesday.

While giving President Truman's trouble-shooter W. Averell Harriman full credit for getting talks started, observers were wary of predicting success.

The issue of nationalizing the properties of the $1,400,000,000 British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company is political dynamite in both countries. Mossadegh has already backtracked by agreeing to talk to a British government.

Hill Loses Life At Niagara Falls

Device of Inner Tubes Fails Veteran of River Rapids

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 6 (P)—William "Red" Hill pressed his luck too far and lost his life trying to go over Niagara Falls in a home-made rubber "barrel."

But already his younger brother, Lloyd, is preparing to try the same dare-devil feat—in a steel barrel. Lloyd said last night he'd probably make his attempt next Sunday.

The 38-year-old "Red" had teased fate for years on the treacherous Niagara river rapids which he had "ridden" several times.

His ambition was to become the fourth person to go over the falls and live.

But yesterday, with 200,000 spectators lining the river banks, his rubber barrel failed him and he was swept to death over the 165-foot Canadian Horseshoe Falls.

Third to Die

He was the third person to die in the attempt.

Hill's barrel was made out of 14 old innertubes, inflated and bound together with cotton canvas and heavy fish netting. It was shaped like a jolly roll, closed at both ends, with an air mattress inside.

House Committee Approves 56 Billion Outlay for Military

Sum Is Billion and Half Below Request of President; Does Not Include 4½ Billions for Public Works, Nor Korean War Since June Washington, Aug. 6 (P)—A record $56,062,405,890 peacetime military budget was approved today by the House Appropriations Committee.

It is $1,542,608,500 less than the President requested and does not include $4,500,000,000 for public works construction to be considered later this year. Neither does it include financing of the fighting in Korea since June 30, the bill for that to be footed in a later measure.

With that one exception, the present measure is to finance the Defense Department for the fiscal year ending next June 30.

Accompanying the big money bill to the House for debate starting Wednesday was a statement by Rep. Mahon (D-Tex.). It sharply rebuked the military for wasteful manpower and procurement practices. Mahon is chairman of a subcommittee that wrote the bill after several months of hearings.

Boyle's name has been brought into published accounts of a $556,000 government loan to a St. Louis printing firm. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch said the loan was turned down three times but was granted after the firm retained Boyle.

Boyle has denied he had any connection with the loan, but there have been demands in Congress for an investigation of it.

Senator Byrd (D-Va.) has declared that if Boyle used his influence to get the loan for the firm, then Boyle should be fired or should resign from his party post.

Boyle spent 30 minutes with President Truman, his first call at the White House since the Post-Dispatch published its stories that he received funds from the American Lithoford Corporation, the RFC borrower.

Proposes State Inquiry

New York, Aug. 6 (P)—A New York state inquiry to "determine why so many youths have succumbed to street gang terrorism and drug addiction" has been proposed by State Senator Seymour Halpern, Queens Republican.

Halpern proposes a temporary state commission with "sweeping powers to get to the root of teen-age unrest so that a permanent program, including new laws, might be developed to combat the problem." In a statement yesterday, Halpern said he would introduce a bill setting up the body at the State Legislature's next session in January. The commission, he said, would take testimony from interested public groups.

Strike Broken, They Say

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Aug. 6 (P)—Government sources say they believe the four-day-old strike of anti-Peron railway workers has been broken. The presidential press office would not say definitely last night that the strike is over, but said only that "all railroads are operating normally." Several hundred members of the dissident Engineer and Firemen Brotherhood walked out last Wednesday protesting that the government-sponsored General Confederation of Labor was interfering with their right to choose their own union leaders.

Captain-Elect Declares Those Dismissed Are Not Culprits

Washington, Aug. 6 (P)—Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo.) said today more than $2,000,000 would be wasted through the mass dismissal of 90 West Point cadets for cheating on examinations.

"But," he added, "it is worth it." "I think the Army is to be congratulated for stepping in and cleaning up their own house, and there is no need for a congressional investigation," Johnson, a former chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, told a reporter.

Johnson said it costs an average of more than $30,000 for each young man appointed to the West Point Military Academy and so, he said, the mass dismissal could waste as much as $2,700,000.

"It's been a shocking and unpleasant affair but the cadets and officials have done their duty," Johnson said. "The dismissals may save future billions of dollars in defense costs and what is even more precious — many lives of the young men who fight under these future officers."

Others Ask Inquiry

Although Johnson insisted no congressional probe of the dismissals is needed, other lawmakers thought some sort of an inquiry was required.

Nine Republicans — members of the House Armed Services Committee — suggested Saturday that such investigation should be aimed at the "seat of the malady" in Washington.

"The recent basketball 'fix' cases, the trafficking of high school children in narcotics, and now the West Point case, are only by-products of a chronic moral turpitude that exists in the federal government today," the GOP group said in a statement.

Several lawmakers, including Johnson, upheld West Point officials in their refusal to identify the students involved. Johnson said he did not think the names should be made public "unless the young men themselves want this."

Captain Gives Views

At West Point, Harold J. Loehlein, captain-elect of the 1951 football team and president-elect of the senior class, told newsmen yesterday he was one of those to be dismissed. He added:

"We are not culprits, not incompetent, and have not corrupted the nation's morals."

The Washington Post, quoting unnamed West Point sources, said there were 44 football players among the cadets facing dismissal.

Senator Fulbright (D-Ark.) said he thought intercollegiate football should be suspended at West Point and Annapolis while the situation is being studied.

But Senator O'Connor (D-Md.), chairman of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee, said:

"It will be short-sighted and unfortunate if, in the excitement attendant upon the discovery of a wide-spread violation of the honor code at West Point, there would be a decision to abandon or suspend athletics at the military or naval academies."

O'Connor called for "calm reflection, instead of precipitate action x x x while authorities consider steps to avoid a repetition of this regrettable occurrence."

Navy Builds Up Strength in Spanish Area

Washington, Aug. 6 (P)—The navy is building up its fleet strength in the Mediterranean. This may be one of the reasons why the U. S. is moving now for an arrangement with Spain to use naval and air bases in that country.

Since it began operating in the Mediterranean soon after World War II the 6th Fleet has relied on a method of service and supply like that used in the Pacific campaigns. All of its fuel, food and other supplies are from the "train" of auxiliary vessels steaming with the fleet—tankers, cargo vessels, refrigerator ships, repair craft.

Because the train must get its supplies back in home ports of the east coast United States, this means a "pipeline" of 1,500 miles must be maintained.

Ships Keep to Sea

Except for occasional courtesy calls at friendly Mediterranean ports, ships of the fleet keep to sea.

Available information shows that more than 30 ships, the majority of them combatant vessels, now constitute the 6th Fleet.

It includes a 45,000-ton carrier, a 27,000-ton Essex class flattop, three heavy cruisers, at least 20 destroyers, a submarine and the support and supply ships. Flag ship of the fleet is the amphibious command ship Mt. Olympus.

Aboard the ships are a total of about 23,000 men, including a reinforced battalion of marines.

Valuable Additions

Military leaders of the Western European Defense Organization are described as interested in seeing ample naval air support, based on carriers, for the group troops under the combined command of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Whatever fighter and attack planes carriers could send inland would be valuable additions to the air strength of land-based aviation of the NATO countries, they reason.

Moreover, the fleets of the NATO nations and their carriers can be ready to move to eastern Mediterranean areas beyond the ground defense lines of the Western European forces. Should Greece or Turkey or Yugoslavia be attacked carrier forces could bring help swiftly.

New York Woman, 27, Held Trying to Take Son to Reds

Paris, Aug. 6 (P)—A U. S. Embassy attaché said today the United States will begin extradition proceedings against a young New York mother if she does not agree to return voluntarily to face kidnapping charges.

The charges were instituted against Mrs. Philomine Kreisler Kirkwood, 27, by her former husband, George Kreisler, a Manhattan night club entertainer.

She denied Kreisler's accusations that she intended to slip behind the Iron Curtain in Berlin with their son, Tom, 8. Mrs. Kirkwood was taken into custody yesterday when she arrived in Cherbourg aboard the liner Homeland from New York with the boy.

They spent last night in a room at the Cherbourg police station.

Commissioner Raoul Michel at Cherbourg said Mrs. Kirkwood would be released tomorrow if the New York warrant charging her with kidnapping did not arrive. The warrant was obtained after Kreisler told authorities his former wife was a Communist and was taking the child to Russian-occupied Germany to be brought up as a Red.

Mrs. Kirkwood told newsmen it wasn't so—she was just going to visit her mother in West Berlin for two months. Police said they were surprised she should take six trunks, one big packing case and ten suitcases for a two-month visit.

She was accompanied by her present husband, Charles Kirkwood, and the boy. Mother and child were given a room—not a cell—in the jail.

Mrs. Kirkwood said the charge was "complete nonsense."

"I have complete custody of the child. We can travel any place in the world we want to," she said.

Kreisler's action pressing the kidnap charges said it was based on a judge's order during their divorce proceedings that the boy should not be taken more than 25 miles from New York without court permission.

East Berlin Rally Has Hatred of U.S. As Main Theme

Pieck Gives Hitler-Style Speeches to 80,000 at 'Festival' of 'Peace'

Berlin, Aug. 6 (P)—East Berlin was jammed with Communist youth today for a "world peace festival" whose main theme was hatred of the United States and loyalty to Russia's Prime Minister Stalin.

The tone for the $10,000,000 celebration was set yesterday in fiery speeches at the opening Hitler-style rally by East Germany's Communist President Wilhelm Pieck.

About 80,000 blue-shirted young Communists crowded a sports arena in the Russian sector to hear him denounce the "American-English war-makers." In response, the youngsters roared lustily:

"Long live the Soviet Union, which gives the great example of peaceful construction to the peoples."

"Long live the great leader in the world fight for the peaceful future of the peoples, Josef Vissarionovich Stalin."

Spanish Area

Washington, Aug. 6 (P)—The navy is building up its fleet strength in the Mediterranean. This may be one of the reasons why the U. S. is moving now for an arrangement with Spain to use naval and air bases in that country.

Since it began operating in the Mediterranean soon after World War II the 6th Fleet has relied on a method of service and supply like that used in the Pacific campaigns. All of its fuel, food and other supplies are from the "train" of auxiliary vessels steaming with the fleet—tankers, cargo vessels, refrigerator ships, repair craft.

Because the train must get its supplies back in home ports of the east coast United States, this means a "pipeline" of 1,500 miles must be maintained.

Ships Keep to Sea

Except for occasional courtesy calls at friendly Mediterranean ports, ships of the fleet keep to sea.

Available information shows that more than 30 ships, the majority of them combatant vessels, now constitute the 6th Fleet. It includes a 45,000-ton carrier, a 27,000-ton Essex class flattop, three heavy cruisers, at least 20 destroyers, a submarine and the support and supply ships. Flag ship of the fleet is the amphibious command ship Mt. Olympus.

Aboard the ships are a total of about 23,000 men, including a reinforced battalion of marines.

Valuable Additions

Military leaders of the Western European Defense Organization are described as interested in seeing ample naval air support, based on carriers, for the group troops under the combined command of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Whatever fighter and attack planes carriers could send inland would be valuable additions to the air strength of land-based aviation of the NATO countries, they reason.

Moreover, the fleets of the NATO nations and their carriers can be ready to move to eastern Mediterranean areas beyond the ground defense lines of the Western European forces. Should Greece or Turkey or Yugoslavia be attacked carrier forces could bring help swiftly.

Car Recovered

The sedan of James Cave, 324 Wall street, which was reported stolen from near The Barn over the Washington avenue viaduct at 2:20 a. m., Saturday, was reported recovered Saturday night on Pine street. Edward Cragan, 43 Pine street, reported to police headquarters at 8 p. m. Saturday that a car believed to be Cave's, was parked opposite his house. Officers Walter Van Steenburgh and James Harbeck investigated and notified the owner.

Wallet Is Lost

Theodore Robinson of Long Island city reported to the sheriff's office at 9:50 p. m. Sunday that he lost his wallet at or near Williams Lake while he was swimming there during the day. The wallet contained a driver's license and automobile registration.

A group of armed Chinese Communist troops, carrying machine guns and rifles, wearing field gear, march past a UN cease-fire convoy jeep about three-quarters of a mile from the conference house in Kaesong (Aug. 4 Korean time). Gen. Ridgway demanded of the Reds a "satisfactory explanation" of the presence of the troops and a promise such incidents would not recur before cease-fire talks are resumed. at 'Festival' of 'Peace'

Berlin, Aug. 6 (P)—East Berlin was jammed with Communist youth today for a "world peace festival" whose main theme was hatred of the United States and loyalty to Russia's Prime Minister Stalin.

The tone for the $10,000,000 celebration was set yesterday in fiery speeches at the opening Hitler-style rally by East Germany's Communist President Wilhelm Pieck.

About 80,000 blue-shirted young Communists crowded a sports arena in the Russian sector to hear him denounce the "American-English war-makers." In response, the youngsters roared lustily:

"Long live the Soviet Union, which gives the great example of peaceful construction to the peoples."

"Long live the great leader in the world fight for the peaceful future of the peoples, Josef Vissarionovich Stalin."

They heard a chunky blonde, billed by festival officials as American Frances Damon, apologize for U. S. warmongers, who, she said, had prevented the youth of America from streaming to the fete. Only 11 persons identified as Americans were present.

Pieck boasted that visitors had flocked to the Communist-run sector of Berlin from 38 countries for the third-annual 14-day pro-Soviet festival.

Officials claimed that 2,000,000 youths would take part in the show, but admitted that only 240,000 were on hand in the city yesterday. All but 10,000 of these were from Russian-occupied East Germany.

Wicks Is Back
At State Desk

Senator Arthur H. Wicks, of this city, Senate Majority Leader since 1949, returned today to his office in Albany "feeling wonderful."

Wicks entered Albany Hospital last week for a five-day annual checkup.

"I never felt better in my life," Senator Wicks told The Freeman this noon, "and it's a good thing. I certainly have lots of work ahead of me. I feel fine, ready to go a while with Sugar Ray Robinson—about 10 seconds," he quipped.

Senator Wicks, who is one of the key men in the State administration, also is Ulster county Republican chairman.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 6 (P)—A Buffalo professor believes the study of history and geography from an airplane may be part of the student-of-tomorrow's curriculum.

Dr. Marvin A. Rapp, a member of the Buffalo State Teachers College faculty led a group of 40 students in a flying, six-hour educational tour of the state Saturday.

He and another faculty member kept running commentary as a twin-engine plane became a classroom-in-the-sky over the Barge Canal, the Finger Lakes and Mohawk and Hudson valleys.

The geographical and historical significance of such sites as the state capital at Albany and the U. S. Military Academy at West Point were pointed out. Then the plane landed at New York's LaGuardia Airport where Tokyo, Aug. 6 (P)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway and four allied cease-fire delegates conferred in Tokyo tonight on stalled truce talks at Kaesong.

Out of that conference may come a message to the Reds which will lead to resumption of negotiations.

A Ridgway aide said the supreme commander was preparing such a message. It will reply to the Red apology for the presence of armed Chinese soldiers near the UN staff house in Kaesong Saturday.

The supreme commander called off the talks Sunday morning. He charged the Reds with "flagrant violation" of Kaesong's neutrality. Late Monday afternoon Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, senior UN delegate, and three other allied negotiators flew to Tokyo from Korea.

They immediately went into conference with Ridgway at his headquarters.

The conference ended several hours later when Ridgway returned to his home.

Demands Assurances

In breaking off the talks Sunday morning, Ridgway demanded assurances that armed Red troops would not again violate Kaesong's neutrality.

About 150 Chinese soldiers marched within a few hundred yards of the UN staff house during the luncheon recess Saturday. They carried rifles, machine guns and hand grenades.

The Reds apologized over Peiping radio Monday, and asked that talks be resumed immediately. They said it was an "accident," and that steps were being taken to insure the incident wouldn't be repeated.

They also replied directly to Ridgway, but the text of that message was not disclosed.

Will Come to Grips

If the talks resume Tuesday, the Reds and allies will again come to grips on the problem of a cease-fire buffer zone.

The Reds want it along the 38th Parallel, pre-war political border between North and South Korea.

The UN wants it "in effect the line now generally held by the UN force," much of which is in North Korea.

Ridgway's headquarters outlined the allied demand Monday in a statement issued "to set at rest speculation."

The statement nullified a press release issued by the civil information and education division of supreme allied headquarters Saturday. The release said the allies were demanding a buffer zone somewhere between the present battle line and the Yalu river on the Manchurian border.

Aides Go With Joy

Joy was accompanied to Tokyo by Maj. Gen. L. C. Craigie, Maj. Gen. H. I. Hodes, and Rear Adm. Arleigh Burke. Maj. Gen. Paik Sun Yup, South Korean representative on the five-man allied team, presumably stayed behind in Korea.

Joy did not formally protest the troop incident at Saturday's meeting. He merely noted it for the record.

Peiping radio, propaganda mouthpiece for the Red Chinese government, expounded the soldiers were Communist guards on their way to a "discussion meeting." It admitted the soldiers had carried "improper weapons," and said they entered the conference area "by mistake."

The broadcast said Lt. Gen. Nam Il, chief Communist delegate at Kaesong, ordered a full report on the incident. He then ordered a liaison officer to notify the UN truce team strict orders had been issued to guarantee that such incidents would not be repeated.

Says UN Would Suffer

While they appeared anxious that the talks be resumed, the Reds said the United Nations

New York Woman, 27, Held
Trying to Take Son to Reds

Paris, Aug. 6 (P)—A U. S. Embassy attache said today the United States will begin extradition proceedings against a young New York mother if she does not agree to return voluntarily to face kidnapping charges.

The charges were instituted against Mrs. Philomine Kreisler Kirkwood, 27, by her former husband, George Kreisler, a Manhattan night club entertainer.

She denied Kreisler's accusations that she intended to slip behind the Iron Curtain in Berlin with their son, Tom, 8. Mrs. Kirkwood was taken into custody yesterday when she arrived in Cherbourg aboard the liner Homeland from New York with the boy.

They spent last night in a room at the Cherbourg police station. Commissioner Raoul Michel at Cherbourg said Mrs. Kirkwood would be released tomorrow if the New York warrant charging her with kidnapping did not arrive. The warrant was obtained after Kreisler told authorities his former wife was a Communist and was taking the child to Russian-occupied Germany to be brought up as a Red.

Mrs. Kirkwood told newsmen it wasn't so—she was just going to visit her mother in West Berlin for two months. Police said they were surprised she should take six trunks, one big packing case and ten suitcases for a two-month visit.

She was accompanied by her present husband, Charles Kirkwood, and the boy. Mother and child were given a room—not a cell—in the jail.

Mrs. Kirkwood said the charge was "complete nonsense."

"I have complete custody of the child. We can travel any place in the world we want to," she said.

Kreisler's action pressing the kidnapping charges said it was based on a judge's order during their divorce proceedings that the boy should not be taken more than 25 miles from New York without court permission.

GREETING CARDS
There's a card for each occasion
That seems to tell a story well
The sweet poetic way.
It doesn't seem to matter
What happens on your street
You'll find a rhyme for just a dime
With phrases most complete.

A card for uncle's birthday
Conveys a word of cheer
A verse or two will speak for you
When holidays appear.
In spite of rhymes I pencil
While the hours away
The little muse will not enslave
When greetings I'd convey.

My thoughts go helter-skelter
And tho' I struggle hard
When friends of mine expect a line
I go . . . and buy . . . a card!

The Texan took one look at the cow and took off—fast. Nearby Burmese joining the chase caught the cow by the tail while Blaschke made his getaway.

11 Persons Hurt In Five Mishaps During Week-End

Eleven persons were injured in five traffic mishaps in the city over the week-end.

Six of them were hurt in a two-car collision at Wurts and McEntee streets early Saturday afternoon. This was followed by a sedan-taxi mishap at O'Neil street and Ten Broeck avenue later that afternoon in which four reported injuries, and a subsequent accident at 3:55 p. m., in which a child was struck and slightly injured by a truck.

A truck overturned but no injuries were reported in a car-truck mishap at East Strand near Ferry street at 3:20 a. m. Sunday, and two cars were towed from the scene but there were no injuries in a collision at Bruyn avenue and Elmendorf street at 5 p. m. Saturday.

Salvatore Verducci, 311 Seventh street, Union City, N. J., was arrested by Bruce Adams' Quick, of Port Ewen, following the sedan-taxi collision at 2:50 p. m. Saturday on O'Neil street and Ten Broeck avenue, on the charge that he passed a stop-sign. He posted $10 bail for city court appearance Aug. 11.

Officer Francis Fagan reported that the sedan driven by Verducci was headed north on O'Neil street, and the Quick, operated by Quick, was going east on Ten Broeck avenue, when they were in collision. The Verducci sedan overturned and was righted by persons who gathered at the scene, the report said.

Listed as injured were Rose Verducci, 37, injured right shin; Martha Verducci, 12, scrape on right knee; James Verducci, 5, right side of face bruised and swollen, and Nancy DeLuca, 20, of 713 West street, Union City, injured left arm.

Officer Fagan's report of the mishap at 12:20 p. m., at Wurts and McEntee street Saturday, said a sedan operated south on McEntee street by Milton Schmuckley, 21, of 18 May street, New Rochelle, and another driven by Robert J. Bendham, 53, 123-16 Linden Boulevard, South Ozone Park, was headed north on Wurts street, when they came together.

Six in Car Treated
Those in the Schmuckley car listed as treated at Kingston Hospital for minor injuries were Lena, 37, Mark, 8, Sandra, 6, and Murray Glago, 38, all of 18 May street, New Rochelle. Also treated were Bendham and Mrs. Gertrude Bendham, 51, of South Ozone Park. The injured were conveyed to the hospital in a Conner ambulance. Both cars were damaged in the front and were towed from the scene.

A report at 5:55 p. m. Saturday said that Edward Collins, 2, of 16 Valley street, was treated at the Benedictine Hospital for a bump on the head following the mishap on East Strand.

Child Is Struck
Reuben Fischwecker, of 42 West Union street, driving a panel truck owned by Aaron Adin, 197 Elmendorf street, west on East Strand at 3:55 p. m., struck the child "who ran into the street in front of the truck" near Alcon's shoe store, the report said.

A report on the mishap at 3:20 a. m. Sunday at East Strand and Ferry street said David K. Bach, of Saugerties, reported that while he was driving west on the Strand his car was struck by a vehicle which damaged it on the left side. The report said the other car kept going and when Bach "turned to give chase" he found a pickup truck turned over on its side on

Board Begins Study
Albany, N. Y., Aug. 6 (P)—The State Board of Equalization and Assessment began today a study of the property assessment rates in New York city. The rates are based on the ratio of local assessed valuations to the full value of local real property, as determined by the state. They are used in valuing special franchises for local tax purposes and in computing some types of state aid to localities. The appraisals have no effect on local assessments, which are determined by local assessors. Most other areas of the state already have been surveyed by the State Equalization Board.

Incendiary Blamed For Lenahan Blaze
A large shed on the R. Lenahan Company boatyard property, Ravine and Abel streets, was damaged today by a fire, which Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy said was apparently started by young boys.

A police investigation resulted in the questioning of two six-year-old boys, who were reprimanded and released because of their age, Sgt. James Cullum said. A similar start on a fire several days ago was quenched by a man in the boatyard, Chief Murphy said.

Firemen were called at 11:25 a. m., after discovery of the fire by William J. Dwyer, treasurer of the company, who saw flames coming out of a small addition to the structure.

The flames went up one side of the building to the roof which was metal and prevented a breakthrough. Most damage was in the roof area of the structure, but some derrick equipment stored inside was also damaged, the chief said.

Men and equipment from Cornell and Central stations answered the alarm.

Four Are Injured As Car Overturns
Four persons were hospitalized after the automobile they were riding in overturned off Route 32 at Plattkill at 4:45 a. m. Sunday, state police reported.

The injured and their conditions as reported at St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh this morning were:

Dieskau Reed, 53, of the Bronx, condition fair.

Claude Blackman, 45, of New York city, condition fair.

Vivian Blackman, 24, of New York city, condition fairly good.

Bernice Ivy, 25, of South Bend, Ind., condition fairly good.

Troopers said Reed, the driver, told them he was traveling in a northerly direction and negotiating a sharp left curve in the highway when he was blinded by the headlights of an unknown vehicle coming in the opposite direction.

Reuben Fischwecker, of 42 West Union street, driving a panel truck owned by Aaron Adin, 197 Elmendorf street, west on East Strand at 3:55 p. m., struck the child "who ran into the street in front of the truck" near Alcon's shoe store, the report said.

A report on the mishap at 3:20 a. m. Sunday at East Strand and Ferry street said David K. Bach, of Saugerties, reported that while he was driving west on the Strand his car was struck by a vehicle which damaged it on the left side. The report said the other car kept going and when Bach "turned to give chase" he found a pickup truck turned over on its side on

Board Begins Study
Albany, N. Y., Aug. 6 (P)—The State Board of Equalization and Assessment began today a study of the property assessment rates in New York city. The rates are based on the ratio of local assessed valuations to the full value of local real property, as determined by the state. They are used in valuing special franchises for local tax purposes and in computing some types of state aid to localities. The appraisals have no effect on local assessments, which are determined by local assessors. Most other areas of the state already have been surveyed by the State Equalization Board.

Incendiary Blamed For Lenahan Blaze
A large shed on the R. Lenahan Company boatyard property, Ravine and Abel streets, was damaged today by a fire, which Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy said was apparently started by young boys.

A police investigation resulted in the questioning of two six-year-old boys, who were reprimanded and released because of their age, Sgt. James Cullum said. A similar start on a fire several days ago was quenched by a man in the boatyard, Chief Murphy said.

Firemen were called at 11:25 a. m., after discovery of the fire by William J. Dwyer, treasurer of the company, who saw flames coming out of a small addition to the structure.

The flames went up one side of the building to the roof which was metal and prevented a breakthrough. Most damage was in the roof area of the structure, but some derrick equipment stored inside was also damaged, the chief said.

Men and equipment from Cornell and Central stations answered the alarm.

Four Are Injured As Car Overturns
Four persons were hospitalized after the automobile they were riding in overturned off Route 32 at Plattkill at 4:45 a. m. Sunday, state police reported.

The injured and their conditions as reported at St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh this morning were:

Dieskau Reed, 53, of the Bronx, condition fair.

Claude Blackman, 45, of New York city, condition fair.

Vivian Blackman, 24, of New York city, condition fairly good.

Bernice Ivy, 25, of South Bend, Ind., condition fairly good.

Troopers said Reed, the driver, told them he was traveling in a northerly direction and negotiating a sharp left curve in the highway when he was blinded by the headlights of an unknown vehicle coming in the opposite direction.

11 Persons Hurt In Five Mishaps During Week-End

Eleven persons were injured in five traffic mishaps in the city over the week-end.

Six of them were hurt in a two-car collision at Wurts and McEntee streets early Saturday afternoon. This was followed by a sedan-taxi mishap at O'Neil street and Ten Broeck avenue later that afternoon in which four reported injuries, and a subsequent accident at 3:55 p. m., in which a child was struck and slightly injured by a truck.

A truck overturned but no injuries were reported in a car-truck mishap at East Strand near Ferry street at 3:20 a. m. Sunday, and two cars were towed from the scene but there were no injuries in a collision at Bruyn avenue and Elmendorf street at 5 p. m. Saturday.

Salvatore Verducci, 311 Seventh street, Union City, N. J., was arrested by Bruce Adams' Quick, of Port Ewen, following the sedan-taxi collision at 2:50 p. m. Saturday on O'Neil street and Ten Broeck avenue, on the charge that he passed a stop-sign. He posted $10 bail for city court appearance Aug. 11.

Officer Francis Fagan reported that the sedan driven by Verducci was headed north on O'Neil street, and the Quick, operated by Quick, was going east on Ten Broeck avenue, when they were in collision. The Verducci sedan overturned and was righted by persons who gathered at the scene, the report said.

Listed as injured were Rose Verducci, 37, injured right shin; Martha Verducci, 12, scrape on right knee; James Verducci, 5, right side of face bruised and swollen, and Nancy DeLuca, 20, of 713 West street, Union City, injured left arm.

Officer Fagan's report of the mishap at 12:20 p. m., at Wurts and McEntee street Saturday, said a sedan operated south on McEntee street by Milton Schmuckley, 21, of 18 May street, New Rochelle, and another driven by Robert J. Bendham, 53, 123-16 Linden Boulevard, South Ozone Park, was headed north on Wurts street, when they came together.

Six in Car Treated
Those in the Schmuckley car listed as treated at Kingston Hospital for minor injuries were Lena, 37, Mark, 8, Sandra, 6, and Murray Glago, 38, all of 18 May street, New Rochelle. Also treated were Bendham and Mrs. Gertrude Bendham, 51, of South Ozone Park. The injured were conveyed to the hospital in a Conner ambulance. Both cars were damaged in the front and were towed from the scene.

A report at 5:55 p. m. Saturday said that Edward Collins, 2, of 16 Valley street, was treated at the Benedictine Hospital for a bump on the head following the mishap on East Strand.

GREETING CARDS

There's a card for each occasion
With a greeting bright and gay
That seems to tell a story well
The sweet poetic way.

It doesn't seem to matter
What happens on your street
You'll find a rhyme for just a dime
With phrases most complete.

A card for uncle's birthday
Conveys a word of cheer
A verse or two will speak for you
When holidays appear.

In spite of rhymes I pencil
To while the hours away
The fickle muse will not enslave
When greetings I'd convey.

My thoughts go better-skitter
And tho' I struggle hard
Good friends of mine expect a line
I go... and buy... a card!

Texan Shames Texas

Rangoon, (AP)—You wouldn't expect a Texan to steer away from a cow but that's what ECA's Lester E. Blaschke did. Blaschke, a malariologist, was taking his mind off business one quiet afternoon at the Rangoon Zoo. He turned around on hearing a kind of snorting and saw a charging cow. The Texan took one look at the cow and took off—fast. Nearby Burmese joining the chase caught the cow by the tail while Blaschke made his getaway.

Grasshopper Blasters

Hong Kong (AP)—Jittery Hong Kong dived for cover one day this week when the pro-Communist "Wen Wei Pao" blazoned the headline: "People's Air Force Goes Into Action for First Time in Chinese History!" But the small-print story beneath cleared things up. The planes were eliminating grasshoppers, not people, and in Northwest Anhwei, not Korea. Four planes took part in the "mission."

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 6 (AP)—Prices wavered today in the stock market without developing any concerted direction.

But there was plenty of localized activity. Steels and motors, for example, were active and higher, and the rubber division developed surprising strength after a lagging start.

There were some outstanding performers in the chemical section, too, but elsewhere prices moved narrowly in a mixed pattern.

Changes seldom amounted to more than a few cents among most of the active issues, but even small price alterations were sometimes enough to shove the stock from one side of the line to the other.

The market started fast and higher, but it soon slowed down and prices began to slip. Shortly before midday there was a stiffening here and there together with a slight increase in business activity.

11 Persons Hurt In Five Mishaps During Week-End

Eleven persons were injured in five traffic mishaps in the city over the week-end.

Six of them were hurt in a two-car collision at Wurts and McEntee streets early Saturday afternoon. This was followed by a sedan-taxi mishap at O'Neill street and Ten Broeck avenue later that afternoon in which four reported injuries, and a subsequent accident at 3:55 p. m., in which a child was struck and slightly injured by a truck.

A truck overturned but no injuries were reported in a car-truck mishap at East Strand near Ferry street at 3:20 a. m., Sunday, and two cars were towed from the scene but there were no injuries in a collision at Bruyn avenue and Elmendorf street at 5 p. m. Saturday.

Salvatore Verducci, 311 Seventh street, Union City, N. J., was arrested by Bruce Adams, quick, of Port Ewen, following the sedan-taxi collision at 2:50 p. m. Saturday on O'Neill street and Ten Broeck avenue, on the charge that he passed a stop-sign. He posted $10 bail for city court appearance Aug. 13.

Officer Francis Fagan reported that the sedan driven by Verducci, was headed north on O'Neill street, and the taxi, operated by Quick, was going east on Ten Broeck avenue, when they were in collision. The Verducci sedan overturned and was righted by persons who gathered at the scene, the report said.

Listed as injured were Rose Verducci, 37, injured right shin; Martha Verducci, 12, scrape on right knee; James Verducci, 5, right side of face bruised and swollen, and Nancy DeLuca, 20, of 713 West street, Union City, injured left arm.

Officer Fagan's report of the mishap at 12:20 p. m. at Wurts and McEntee street Saturday, said a sedan operated south on McEntee street by Milton Schmuckley, 21, of 18 May street, New Rochelle, and another driven by Robert J. Bendham, 53, 123-16 Linden Boulevard, South Ozone Park, was headed north on Wurts street, when they came together.

Six in Car Treated

Those in the Schmuckley car listed as treated at Kingston Hospital for minor injuries were Lena, 37, Mark, 8, Sandra, 6, and Murray Glago, 38, all of 18 May street, New Rochelle. Also treated were Bendham and Mrs. Gertrude Bendham, 51, of South Ozone Park. The injured were conveyed to the hospital in a Conner ambulance. Both cars were damaged in the front and were towed from the scene.

A report at 5:55 p. m. Saturday said that Edward Collins, 2, of 16 Valley street, was treated at the Benedictine Hospital "for a bump on the head," following the mishap on East Strand.

Child Is Struck

Reuben Fischweicker, of 42 West Union street, driving a panel truck owned by Aaron Adin, 197 Elmendorf street, west on East Strand at 3:55 p. m., struck the child "who ran into the street in front of the truck" near Alcon's shoe store, the report said.

A report on the mishap at 3:20 a. m., Sunday at East Strand and Ferry street said David K. Bach, of Saugerties, reported that while he was driving west on the Strand his car was struck by a vehicle which damaged it on the left side.

The report said the other car kept going and when Bach "turned to give chase" he found a pick-up truck turned over on its side on the railroad tracks near 180 East Strand.

Lost Control of Car

Officers George Dougherty and Meyer Levy, who investigated, reported the truck owned and operated by Lester S. Hymes, 25, of 34 Meadow street, Hymes claimed, the report said, that the Bach car was "partly on the wrong side of the street," and his vehicle "went partly out of control" and could not stop. The truck was damaged on the right side and left front fender, the officers said, and was towed from the scene.

Both cars were towed from the scene, but no injuries were reported as a result of the mishap at Bruyn avenue and Elmendorf street at 5 p. m. Saturday.

Officer Guernsey Burger, Jr., reported that the one car, owned by Robert Shaw Foster, of West Hurley, was headed west on Elmendorf street, and the other, owned and operated by Arnold Wilbur Anderson, of New Salem, was going south on Bruyn avenue, when they were in collision.

Four Are Rescued

Juneau, Alaska, Aug. 6 (AP)—An air force C-47 rescued four persons from the icy slopes of Mt. Hubbard Saturday after they had been marooned by the disappearance of their own plane with three aboard. All were members of an Arctic Institute ice studies expedition. The four reported rescued were Walter A. Wood and his 20-year-old son, Peter, of Far Hills, N. J.; Robert Bates, believed to be from Boston, and Nicholas Clifford. The three others who vanished July 27 in the scientific expedition's Norseman plane were pilot Maurice King, Mrs. Wood and the Woods' daughter, Valerie.

Reports Truck Damaged

Mrs. Benjamin Coniglio of Port Ewen reported to the sheriff's office at 12:15 a. m. today that an unknown vehicle struck and damaged her truck while it was parked in front of her house off Route 9W in Port Ewen. Deputy Sheriff William Churchill, who investigated, said the truck was parked about two feet off the concrete highway and that a piece of aluminum molding had been torn from the hit-run automobile. The truck received damage to its tail pipe, tail light, bracket, left rear mudguard and running board, Churchill reported.

More Chickens

Albany, Aug. 6.—The 25,862,000 chickens being raised on New York farms this year is nearly 15 per cent more than in 1950. This number of chickens is the largest raised by New York farmers since the 1943 to 1945 period when red meats were acutely short, according to a federal-state report issued from the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. The increase in number of chickens being raised is, in part, a reflection of the relatively favorable financial returns from poultry and eggs in relation to the cost of feed.

Held for Jury Action

A 16-year-old Middletown youth was ordered held for grand jury action on a third degree burglary charge following arraignment before Justice of the Peace Louis Berger of Ellenville Sunday afternoon. Joseph Martine, Jr., of Middletown, was arrested by state police, who said he was accused of entering Pine Bush Lakes Estate Monday, July 30, and taking approximately $80 in currency.

About the Folks

Charles Hirst of Bushnellville, who underwent an operation recently at the Margaretville Hospital, has returned to his home.

Board Begins Study

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 6 (AP)—The State Board of Equalization and Assessment began today a study of the property assessment rates in New York city. The rates are based on the ratio of local assessed valuations to the full value of local real property, as determined by the state. They are used in valuing special franchises for local tax purposes and in computing some types of state aid to localities. The appraisals have no effect on local assessments, which are determined by local assessors. Most other areas of the state already have been surveyed by the State Equalization Board.

Incendiary Blamed For Lenahan Blaze

A large shed on the R. Lenahan Company boardwalk property, Ravine and Abeel streets, was damaged today by a fire, which Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy said was apparently started by young boys.

A police investigation resulted in the questioning of two six-year-old boys, who were reprimanded and released because of their age. Sgt. James Cullum said. A similar start on a fire several days ago was quenched by a man in the boardwalk, Chief Murphy said.

Firemen were called at 11:25 a. m., after discovery of the fire by William J. Dwyer, treasurer of the company, who saw flames coming out of a small addition to the structure.

The flames went up one side of the building to the roof which was metal and prevented a breakthrough. Most damage was in the roof area of the structure, but some derrick equipment stored inside was also damaged, the chief said.

Men and equipment from Cornell and Central stations answered the alarm.

Four Are Injured As Car Overturns

Four persons were hospitalized after the automobile they were riding in overturned off Route 32 at Plattekill at 4:45 a. m. Sunday, state police reported.

The injured and their conditions as reported at St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh this morning were:

Dieskau Reed, 53, of the Bronx, condition fair.

Claude Blackman, 45, of New York city, condition fair.

Vivian Blackman, 24, New York city, condition fairly good. Bernice Ivy, 25, South Bend, Ind., condition fairly good.

Troopers said Reed, the driver, told them he was traveling in a northerly direction and negotiating a sharp left curve in the highway when he was blinded by the headlights of an unknown vehicle coming in the opposite direction.

Newburgh, N. Y., Aug. 6 (P)—A tractor-trailer truck and a passenger car collided on a hill near here early yesterday, killing three passengers in the automobile and injuring its driver critically.

Richard G. Fitzsimmons, 31, of Toronto, Canada, the truck driver, is being held on a charge of criminal negligence, state police said.

Killed in the crash were Louise De Rosa, 26, and Yvonne Ellison, 27, both of Newburgh, and Anthony De Rose, 33, of Beacon.

Fund Is Granted For TV Workshop

New York, Aug. 6 (P)—The Ford Foundation has granted $1,200,000 for a television-radio workshop to produce cultural and public service programs for commercial broadcasting.

James Webb Young, the foundation's consultant on mass communications, has been placed in charge of the workshop, the first of its kind combining educational interests with commercial TV and radio.

Describing the workshop operations, Young said it would use its funds to produce shows, which would then be offered without charge to commercial broadcasters.

The broadcasters, in turn, would offer the shows for sale to commercial sponsors. "If sold, the stations will get their time revenue and the workshop its production costs," Young said.

Young said plans include both radio and television with emphasis on video programs for both adults and children.

would suffer if negotiations break down.

Gen. Peng Teh-huai, commander of Chinese forces in Korea, said in an article in Moscow's Pravda that if the talks fail China will throw artillery and air forces of "great size" into the battle.

Penk said the Chinese forces had already created in Korea "people's artillery and military air forces of great size."

"As soon as we create and begin to use these mechanized arms our battle might will increase significantly," he said, "and we shall win greater victories."

Communist broadcasts have said repeatedly that UN demands for a buffer zone were "unrealistic." The Red radio has insisted the UN was asking a cease-fire line north of where the fighting is now.

Prepared to Hold Fast

Some observers speculated the Reds claimed the allies want the truce line deep in Red Korea to pave the way for a face-saving acceptance of the UN demand.

From the tone of the headquarters statement Monday, it appears the allies are prepared to hold fast to their demands.

"As indicated by the secretary of defense at his press conference at the Pentagon Tuesday, July 24, the United Nations command delegation to the cease-fire negotiations have firmly adhered to the principle that to establish a firm armistice arrangement there must be an agreement upon a military line which will be defensible in the event of any renewal of hostilities. This line is in effect the line now generally held by the UN forces."

Joy has rejected the Red demand for a buffer zone along Parallel 38 as an attempt to divide Korea politically.

Former Diplomat Dies

Lindau, Germany, Aug. 6 (P)—Baron Ernst Von Weizsaecker, former German diplomat and once a state secretary in the Nazi foreign office, died here Saturday after a short illness, hospital authorities announced today.

He was 69. Baron Von Weizsaecker was Hitler Germany's ambassador to the Vatican during the war. He was released last October from the United States war crimes prison at Landsberg after his seven-year sentence was commuted by the U. S. high commissioner, John J. McCloy. He had been among a group of Nazi officials convicted of complicity in the mass killings of Jews during the Nazi regime.

Drummer Killed

Hull, Quebec, Aug. 6 (P)—Band Leader Louis Armstrong escaped from a hotel and dance pavilion fire here yesterday in which one person was killed and at least six others were injured. Rafael Gomez, 22, of New York, a drummer with the Lazero Quintero Trio which is engaged at another night spot, was killed. Jonita Hemepe, 24, also of New York, a singer with the trio, was reported missing but later turned up in Montreal. The fire broke out in the rambling wooden Standish Hotel and Dance Pavilion where Armstrong's band has been appearing. His bass player, Dale Jones of Omaha, Neb., hurt his back seriously jumping from the roof of the building.

Burns Are Elected

HOME BUREAU

A luncheon in honor of Mrs. Nellie Stern-Montagny of Gardiner, a member of the executive committee of the Ulster County Home Bureau, was given recently by the executive committee and the agents at Judge's Mrs. Stern-Montagny sailed on August 3 for Europe where she and her family will spend several months traveling in France, Italy and Switzerland.

During her absence, Mrs. David DuBois of Forest Glen will serve in her place on the executive committee.

According to Mrs. William Powers, superintendent, plans for the Home Department of the Ulster County Fair are progressing and will be completed Thursday, August 9, when the fair committee meets at the Home Bureau Office. Entries are beginning to arrive. All exhibitors are urged to get their entries into the Home Bureau Office by August 11.

Mrs. Kenneth Corbin of Stamford assisted by the Misses Everette Parsons and Helen Rowe, county agents, conducted training meetings for local leaders on the making of homemade toys which consist of dolls and stuffed animals. Twenty-one leaders learned how to make stuffed animals; 17 were present to make dolls. Classes will be conducted in the units early in the fall.

Machine Clinics

Enrollments are now being received for a series of meetings on the cleaning and adjustment of the sewing machine to be conducted by Mrs. Alvin Stiller of Highland, who recently represented Ulster county at a training school at Cornell University.

Each enrollee brings her own machine which, under supervision, she takes apart and reassembles after the parts are thoroughly cleaned. The sewing machine clinics begin promptly at 9 a. m. and close when the last machine is completed. The first four are scheduled as follows: Highland, August 28; Saugerties, September 21; Ellenville, October 3; Kingston November 2.

Any further concessions may cause him trouble.

The British also may prove stiff-necked. London believes Mosaddegh will have to compromise because his government will otherwise collapse for lack of the oil revenues it needs to run the country.

Britain also is thinking of her influence and prestige throughout the Middle East which may hinge on the outcome of the talks.

OPS Begins Drive

New York, Aug. 6 (P)—Office of Price Stabilization agents today began a drive to make 20,000 "lagging" retailers in New York state proper ceiling price charts. The retailers are accused of failing to file or filing incorrect data under ceiling price regulation No. 7 which deals with marginal price markups in apparel, furniture, household wares, radios and television sets. About 43,000 retailers were ordered to file the charts as of last May 31. Some 16,000 neglected to refile pricing charts which had been returned for errors or lack of data, the OPS said. Others just failed to file any charts.

May Register Tuesday

Registration of volunteers to serve as auxiliary police under the Civil Defense program will continue at the city hall Tuesday night, August 7, from 7:30 to 9 o'clock. Defense officials report they were encouraged by the registration of 10 additional volunteers last week and hope that many more will sign up this week.

$56,000 Is Price

New York, Aug. 6 (P)—The New York Stock Exchange said today that arrangements had been made for transfer of a membership at $56,000, up $1,000 from the last previous sale. Currently a membership is quoted at $52,000 bid and $58,000 offered.

into the western sectors attracted by free meals, free theatre tickets and free sightseeing. To do so they had to elude Communist police and sneak around road barriers set up to keep them in the Soviet sector.

Persuaded to Return

West Berlin authorities persuaded most of them to go back after a look at the democratic section of the city, but accepted about 100 of the youths as political refugees.

The peace festival had to do without Traudl Eisenkold, a beautiful 19-year-old blonde, who had been slated to queen the proceedings.

After a big build-up as the "ideal progressive woman," Traude fled to the west and told reporters:

"I'd rather pound a typewriter, even scrub floors, in the west than be a Communist glamor girl in the east. I'm sick of Marx-Leninist lectures, sick of making speeches. I just want to live in freedom without fear of spies and informers."

A movie she made in the east on the joys of Communist life had to be cancelled after Traude's defection.

The Communists meanwhile, protested loudly against the refusal of U. S. authorities to let delegates from Britain and France pass through the American zone of Austria to the festival. About 500 Red youths, broke and hungry, demonstrated in the railway station at Innsbruck, Austria, demanding to be let through.

It is doubtful if the Americans will issue transit passes.

Charge Socialized Housing

Washington, Aug. 6 (P)—The National Association of Real Estate Boards has charged that the United Nations is promoting "socialized housing on an international scale."

"This appears to us as an improper function of the UN," association President Alexander Sumner of Newark, N. J., wrote Saturday in a letter to Ambassador Warren Austin, the chief U. S. delegate to the UN. Sumner said "It is astonishing to us that the only Americans whose ideas and suggestions appear in the UN housing bulletin are government employees, college professors and persons active in promoting socialized housing in the United States."

Two Drop In

Austin, Tex., Aug. 6 (P)—Two unexpected guests literally dropped in for lunch yesterday at the home of Homer Parker. The Parker family was eating lunch when an airplane crashed into the bedroom—20 feet away. The occupants of the light plane, Sgt. Chester T. Christopher and Lt. Douglas Wells of Randolph Air Force base at San Antonio, suffered slight injuries. None of the Parkers was injured.

Record Is Set

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 6 (P)—An end to the shivers in upstate New York was predicted today, after a dipping mercury cracked at least one record for a mid-summer low. At Rochester, this morning's low of 45 was two degrees under the all-time low for the date set in 1886. The weather bureau said tonight's temperatures would range in the upper 50s at most upstate points, with Tuesday's readings expected in the middle 70s. Low readings of 47 at Albany and Syracuse this morning tied records for the date set in 1942. Buffalo's 49 was two degrees above the 1886 mark. New York city residents probably had the least shivers of all—the morning low there was 60.2.

The Communists meanwhile, protested loudly against the refusal of U. S. authorities to let delegates from Britain and France pass through the American zone of Austria to the festival. About 500 Red youths broke and hungry, demonstrated in the railway station at Innsbruck, Austria, demanding to be let through.

It is doubtful if the Americans will issue transit passes.

Charge Socialized Housing

Washington, Aug. 6 (AP)—The National Association of Real Estate Boards has charged that the United Nations is promoting "socialized housing on an international scale." "This appears to us as an improper function of the UN," association President Alexander Sumner of Newark, N. J., wrote Saturday in a letter to Ambassador Warren Austin, the chief U. S. delegate to the UN. Sumner said "It is astonishing to us that the only Americans whose ideas and suggestions appear in the UN housing bulletin are government employees, college professors and persons active in promoting socialized housing in the United States."

Two Drop In

Austin, Tex., Aug. 6 (AP)—Two unexpected guests literally dropped in for lunch yesterday at the home of Homer Parker. The Parker family was eating lunch when an airplane crashed into the bedroom—20 feet away. The occupants of the light plane, Sgt. Chester T. Christopher and Lt. Douglas Wells of Randolph Air Force base at San Antonio, suffered slight injuries. None of the Parkers was injured.

Allotment Breakdown

Here's how the money would be allotted, by services:

Army: $20,125,574,665, a cut of $685,321,500 from what it wanted.

Navy: $15,552,143,225, a cut of $194,272,000.

Air Force: $19,854,128,000, a cut of $647,015,000.

National Security Council: $160,000, no cut.

National Security Resources Board: $1,600,000, no cut.

Secretary of Defense: $528,800,000, a cut of $16,000,000; out of this allotment comes retirement pay of $345,000,000.

Deep cuts were made in funds requested for civilian personnel and military procurement. The aggregate $145,130,500 chopped off civilian personnel funds is designed to cut planned white-collar and blue-collar working forces by close to 80,000. This still would leave the military forces tens of thousands more civilian employees than they had during the last fiscal year.

Mahon said in his accompanying statement that he doubts if the money recommended will be enough. He predicted a need for more money later this year for the air force and for naval aviation.

The committee gave no details on the amount in the bill for research and development, but Mahon said the funds for this purpose were adequate to keep the United States in the lead in developing new weapons and defenses for anything a potential enemy may have.

the flying scholars had lunch.

Fly Over Catskills

The airborne students were flown across the Catskill resort area to begin their afternoon "class." They continued over the southern tier through the Susquehanna valley to Mt. Morris.

From there, the winged classroom swung across Letchworth Park, Ft. Niagara and the Niagara river to Buffalo.

Dr. Rapp said he thought it was the first tour of its kind in educational history.

"It was possible to show the students, for example, the manner in which the canal has been responsible for the growth of the state and, from an airplane, it is easy to understand why West Point afforded an ideal location for a fort," he said.

Monkey Took Glasses

Police listed this as merely "Monday Shines." It was a report at 7:45 p. m. Sunday that Harry J. Smith, of Wawarsing, said the monkey at Forsyth Park had grabbed his glasses from his face and pulled them into the cage. The problem of getting them back to Smith was left with the public works department, which he was scheduled to contact today.

Record Is Set

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 6 (AP)—An end to the shivers in upstate New York was predicted today, after a dipping mercury cracked at least one record for a mid-summer low. At Rochester, this morning's low of 45 was two degrees under the all-time low for the date set in 1886. The weather bureau said tonight's temperatures would range in the upper 50s at most upstate points, with Tuesday's readings expected in the middle 70s. Low readings of 47 at Albany and Syracuse this morning tied records for the date set in 1942. Buffalo's 49 was two degrees above the 1886 mark. New York city residents probably had the least shivers of all—the morning low there was 60.2.

TIME TO STOP TALKING AND ACT

All up and down the Missouri, which lived up to its name again and left its "Big Muddy" imprint on the cities and towns, the farms and industries of the river valley, the battle cry is "it will never happen again."

There have been similar cries before, but year after year the Missouri and the Mississippi rise over their banks to flout man-made efforts to keep the waters within bounds. The cry is stronger this year, however, for this time the rivers went on their worst rampage in a century.

And there have been lots of plans to control the floods, too, along with lots of arguments over their merits.

Currently, the Pick-Sloan Plan seems to have the approval of Congress. In the last six years, more than a billion dollars have been appropriated for this system, a 10-state inter-agency affair. In its entirety, it would include 105 dams, plus control basins, and levees from Sioux City, Ia., to St. Louis. Over all, it is a vast five billion dollar project.

Thus far it is 25 per cent completed, but a lot of the rest of the plan has been bypassed by Congress for urgent defense work. Lt. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, co-author of the plan, answered criticism of failure by pointing out that the plan must be carried out in its entirety to insure flood protection for all parts of the basin.

There is other criticism which embraces the whole idea of the Pick-Sloan Plan. Opponents claim it is a piecemeal program enmeshed in politics and conflicting local interests. These critics want a Missouri Valley Authority, like the successful TVA. A bill for an MVA is pending in Congress, but it has been pending for several years without action.

With this year's flood damage in Kansas and Missouri already estimated at nearly a billion dollars, it would seem to be a time for action, rather than argument, for argument will not hold back the flood waters.

If the Missouri Valley people are determined "it will never happen again," the differences between the two plans must be resolved quickly to bring about measures that will work in the near future.

Then Congress must do its part in working out the necessary legislation, remembering that stemming the Big Muddy is urgent defense, too—against a billion dollar enemy.

The stenographers who can take one hundred forty words a minute are right up to par. Now they'd like to have a few bosses who could reach that pace.

TELEVISION AND LEARNING

Western Reserve University will offer a television audience this fall the first opportunity to obtain college credits for courses of study presented by television. The university will telecast two courses, in introductory psychology and comparative European literature.

The idea of televising college courses is an extension of the system in effect at many schools where part of the requirements for college graduation can be fulfilled through the mails. Educators in recent years have been making serious efforts to bring education to the many people who cannot come to the campus to get it.

Because of the efforts of these educators, learning has become an influence in the lives of many people who would otherwise have to do without it. Such influences are needed today and those who work toward spreading them should be commended.

BOUQUETS FOR THE LIVING

Often when a public figure dies or leaves office he receives finally the praise and kind words which were denied him while he was in public service. This is true of people we meet in ordinary day-to-day situations as well as of those in the public eye.

People in their everyday living frequently become discouraged. There are times when

THE LAW AND THE REDS

The law of libel is whatever a jury of 12 citizens says it is and rarely can a lawyer advise a client on the subject, in advance, how a jury will react when a case may come to trial. The lawyers therefore play safe on the dictum: "When in doubt leave it out."

If journalists or radio commentators were to accept the safe advice of the lawyers, nothing could be published against Communists, traitors, gamblers, racketeers and such until after a case had been tried in a court. As a matter of fact, it is usually the proddings of courageous reporters that finally force public action against those criminals and subversives who have found sanctuary in the rules of evidence.

Judge Henry Clay Greenberg of the New York Supreme Court makes this point:
Some newspapers announce in big type that an investigator has called someone a Communist. Then some days later, if at all, these newspapers print a reply, perhaps on an inside page. Reputations are destroyed without the grant of an adequate defense. People are tried in a diabolical sense without due process of the law. This is not true of most newspapers, but papers are in essence a daily, current, hurried reporting instrument. They have no leisure.

This is nonsense. I should like to see Judge Greenberg's list of those whom the newspapers called "Communists," who were, in fact, not Communists.

Actually, the press has been more accurate, more careful, more thorough in its investigations than any other agency, including the Department of Justice, in ferreting out these agents of Stalin, however they may be hidden. I cite my own articles on the "Amerasia Case" which have proved to be correct and which literally took a year of work, involving checks on material going back to 1934—before there was an "Amerasia" magazine.

I also cite the work of Frederick Woltman, Howard Rushmore, Victor Riesel, Frank Waldrop, Westbrook Pegler, Bert Andrews, John O'Donnell, Ogden R. Reid, Victor Lasky, Ralph De Toledano, Freda Utey, Irene Corbally Kuhn, Frank Hanighen, Frank Chodorov, and many others I could include, particularly the editors of "The Freeman" magazine. Such careful investigators have opened the door to evidence against those who sought to destroy our country in the interest of Communists.

When the judge says, "they have no leisure," he talks nonsense. Most of us who are employed to write on such matters are given ample time to do a thorough job. I have held onto one 700 word story as long as a year, checking for accuracy and finally getting the facts. I published long ago some of the data which is now being brought out at the McCarran hearings. I do not say that in self-praise or in self-defense, or to pay that judges, sitting on high benches, in black gowns, in the aura of the sacred, do not always know what they are talking about.

For instance, most of us in this profession are constantly being pestered by House-lawyers, who check on libel, because of an obiter dicta by Judge Stanley Fuld, to the effect that to call a man a Communist, unless he has so declared himself, is libel per se. To this they add, "Do you know that he is a Communist now, today when you say it?" They have some theory about a Communist Party card because somewhere they read or heard that the Communist Party issues such documents, but do not know that the Communist Party ceased to issue such documents.

The Communists naturally take full advantage of the timidity of the lawyers and the general fear of law suits. Radio networks are particularly frightened and therefore substitute murder stories and so-called humor for what they call copywriting commentaries. The Communists are thus given a weapon by our courts and lawyers which they use against us all the time.

Never was this better demonstrated than in the Alger Hiss case or in the present difficulties of Frederick Vanderbilt Field. The lawyers feel that under the Fuld obiter dicta their clients may get into trouble if the truth is published in advance of its becoming "privileged" or established by a decision in the courts.

When our newspapers are run by lawyers, we shall have no news. We shall have qualifying phrases and meaningless adjectives. The whole question before American newspapers and even radio is whether the people are entitled to the truth or must we suppress the truth until the lawyers find it convenient for us to tell it. That Body of Yours

KEEP CHILD QUIET DURING POLIO EPIDEMIC

There have been so many epidemics of infantile paralysis that physicians are learning to recognize cases earlier and so prevent much of the paralysis that accompanies the disease.

In Annals of Internal Medicine, Dr. John R. Paul (Yale University) points out that the average series of infantile paralysis (poliomyelitis) in succeeding epidemics, contains a decreasing percentage of persons over age 15. There is no explanation for this fact but it is found that the percentage of cases which do not result in permanent paralysis is apparently decreasing. It is because so many older individuals now contract infantile paralysis that most physicians use the name poliomyelitis instead of infantile paralysis.

Symptoms of poliomyelitis found in both early and late cases are fever, vomiting and headache, whether or not the disease progresses to paralysis.

The type of onset in young children seems to differ from that of older children and adults. Pain and a quiet onset are more likely to occur in patients over 15 years of age than in those under that age.

Once there is a rise in temperature, it is believed that the virus or organism of poliomyelitis may already be in the central nervous system and the patient should be handled accordingly. Once the virus reaches the central nervous system, there are areas in which there is numbness or partial anesthesia, pain in the limbs and then follows stiff neck, stiff back and increase or exaggeration in one or more of the reflexes. These symptoms may be late in coming but Dr. Paul points out that careful handling of the patient, keeping him quiet and off his feet, may delay or prevent paralysis.

Where onset is gradual or insidious, exercise or exertion should be avoided. However, in 80 per cent or more of those under the age of 10, the onset is likely to be sudden, whereas it is sudden in only one-half the patients over age 15.

What is the lesson for parents from above information?

Whenever there is fever present during an epidemic of poliomyelitis, the child should be treated as a polio case, that is, all physical exercise should be avoided and he should be treated cautiously and kept under observation for about 10 days.

When the youngster is tired, has sore throat and a slight fever, he should be kept quiet until a physician takes over the case.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—Reason behind the alarming war-warnings made by Secretary of Defense Marshall and Army Secretary Pace is the latest intelligence from the Balkans. This reports, among other things, that Communist medical units have arrived along the Bulgarian-Yugoslav border.

Medical units do not participate in ordinary troop maneuvers. They are the last to arrive before military action begins. Maneuvers along the Yugoslav border in themselves may not mean much. They have been going on for months, and when I visited the Bulgarian border last February, I interviewed refugees who had just escaped from behind the iron curtain with news of new Russian concentrations in certain areas. However, latest U. S. intelligence indicates that this has increased.

Bulgaria's army of around 200,000 men is now reported equipped with Soviet combat vehicles, heavy artillery, and new type of fighter plane more powerful than the Yak. The Bulgarian army is under General Atanasov, a Soviet citizen trained in Russia, though of Bulgarian origin. His command has been moved from Sofia to the field.

All along the Rumanian and Bulgarian sides of the Yugoslav border, a strip of land has been completely cleared and a Siegfried line of pillboxes built behind it. This could be part of the war of nerves against Tito, or it could mean that the Kremlin is ready to give Tito the bizness. Late August or September, after the harvest is in, always has been the time when dictators get trigger-happy.

Crime Probe Stymied
Senator Carl Hayden of Arizona, one of the most conscientious and respected members of the Senate has taken a strange stand regarding the crime committee. It puzzles his colleagues in the Senate.

As chairman of the powerful Senate Rules Committee, Hayden has flatly refused to authorize more money to be spent on the crime probe. This has caused the crime committee, now chaired by conscientious Herbert O'Connor of Maryland, to withdraw its investigators from New York and other areas. It also means that the committee will have to wind up its work around September.

If Hayden were not such a respected member of the Senate, his colleagues would suspect that pressure had been brought from certain political elements in touch with the hoodlums who base around Phoenix. That city has been one of the centers for the illicit narcotic trade that comes up from Mexico.

Three times Senator Hayden has been approached by senators who asked for more funds for the crime probe. Each time he has refused. Under senatorial courtesy, Hayden, as chairman of the rules committee, has the power to recommend funds for all Senate investigations, and if he refuses, it is difficult to go over his head.

In contrast, Hayden continues to dish out funds for all sorts of other Senate probes while throttling an investigation which has done more to clean up the big cities of the U. S. A. than anything in half a century.

Washington Pipeline

Friends of Ex-Navy Secretary Matthews, now ambassador to Ireland, are advising him to see Eddie Dowling's new show, "Eddie Dowling's New Show," if he wants to understand some of the problems between North and South Ireland. Entirely aside from the political implications, the play's a smash hit.

U. S. District Judge Robert Inch in New York took the trouble to write a 13-page opinion on why he could not set aside a guilty-of-treason plea by Lt. James Monti whom this column exposed for working with the Nazis in Italy. . . . In contrast, U. S. District Judge Matt McGuire in Washington slapped out an oral opinion "denied" in dismissing a petition by a coal digger to examine the books of the United Mine Workers welfare fund. George Livengood of Uniontown, Pa., was fired out of the union by John L. Lewis when he challenged some of the expenditures of the miners' welfare fund, claiming that the miners who earn the money for the fund have a right to see how the money is spent. This gets to the bottom of union rights, but quick-tempered Judge McGuire didn't even bother to explain why he denied the right to examine. . . . Not even Ezra Van Horn, the mine owners' representative on the miners' welfare fund, was permitted to see the books.

Gratuities in High Places

Washington observers are wondering whether the White House is going to follow the excellent precedent set by the secretary of the army, Frank Pace, regarding gratuities.

Secretary Pace relieved Brig. Gen. David J. Crawford when he found that Crawford's overnight hotel suite was paid for by an army contractor; also used army trucks to haul shrubbery for his home. Pace's forthright action met approval everywhere. Meanwhile, the President has at his right hand some gentlemen who also accepted favors. For instance:

1. His military aide, General Vaughan, accepted deep freezes from a company needing favors from the government.

2. The President's personal doctor, Maj. Gen. Wallace Graham, speculated in commodities at a time when the government was buying food for Europe. He was not relieved, as was Gen. Crawford, but promoted.

3. The presidential aide in charge of picking government personnel, Donald Dawson, was entertained free in a hotel in Miami.

4. The President's appointment secretary, Matt Connelly, enjoys the hospitality of American Airlines vice president for which he has done important favors.

Maybe Secretary Pace should run the White House staff for a day or so and enforce the excellent standard he has set for the army.

Question Asked Whether Senate Report on Elections Is Merely Publicity Piece

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 6 — Is the Senate subcommittee on elections in earnest about cleaning up American political campaigns or is its latest report on the Maryland contest just a piece of ephemeral publicity?

The report calls attention to the fact that it is "the inherent right under our system of government of each state to choose its representatives in congress" and that the Senate in "exercising its constitutional right to be the judge of the qualifications of its members must guard against usurping such right of each state and must require the strongest and most substantial evidence before unseating a senator and nullifying the action of the electorate of a state."

Thereupon the subcommittee says flatly that "the facts developed from the evidence before this committee are not sufficient in our judgment to recommend the unseating of Senator Butler."

If the committee had stopped there, its work would have been in keeping with tradition. But the committee issued a long analysis of the campaign criticizing the tactics and statements of its only one candidate, the Republican, in no uncertain terms. The committee was not entirely the famous "white-wash" report which was sponsored earlier by the opposing Senator, a Democrat, and formed the basis for the bitter campaign itself.

To deal only with one set of unfair attacks and not with an earlier set of unfair accusations which furnished the provocation is not to make an impartial study. There is another committee of the Senate under the chairmanship of Senator McCarran of Nevada which now is investigating un-American activities and Communist behavior and it is taking up some of the same charges which, due to the Tydings committee "white-wash," aroused anti-Communist not only in Maryland but outside of that state who helped to defeat the Democratic candidate, Senator Tydings. Nobody can justly question the loyalty or the patriotism of the former Maryland Senator, but there are many who question the wisdom and will question his judgment in failing to make a thorough investigation of the charges before his committee as defined in the Senate's resolution which ordered the inquiry.

The Senate subcommittee is right in denouncing the innuendoes that were used in the campaign against Senator Tydings. Likewise, it candidly admits that "no specific standards of improper campaign conduct or acts have been set up as guidesposts." It is conceded by the Senate subcommittee that the issue as "between fair comment and political defamation in the context of a campaign is not a delicate one." It then proceeds to make some suggestions for legislation which would not only be wholly impracticable to carry out but would result in federal laws certain to be declared unconstitutional.

The remedy of the aggrieved candidate has been and always is to sue for libel under state laws. This has been done and properly denounced "tabloid" newspapers, especially printed for the campaign, which showed Senator Tydings in a "composite photograph" sitting alongside of Earl Browder, a Communist witness at the hearings and which bore a caption that implied the senator was treating the witness sympathetically or with excessive politeness in not visiting the federal or state laws dealing with elections. The picture was labeled "composite." It was despicable and utterly indefensible from the standpoint of fairness but so also are many of the political cartoons distributed during campaigns and printed in regular newspapers. This practice is fully protected by the Constitution.

The subcommittee goes too far, therefore, in recommending legislation to cover "all types of 'composites' whether they be newspaper pictures, voice recordings, motion pictures, or any other means or medium of conveying a misrepresenting composite impression."

This would certainly rule out many cartoons and one wonders what political majority in the Senate or House is to pass judgment on fairness or unfairness of such cartoons when a defeated candidate makes a squawk.

Any Senate committee really wants to investigate unfair tactics in political campaigns, there are other things worth examining as examples too, such as the innuendoes cast by President Truman himself in 1948 that Governor Dewey was giving aid to the Communists, the "dirty politics" charges in the recent Lehman-Dulles senatorial campaign and the scurrilous literature circulated in 1950 against Senator Taft in Ohio. At an outing given by a CIO union during the campaign, a big picture of Senator Taft was displayed under which only his initials—"R. A. T."—were printed in large letters and onlookers were offered a chance at 10 cents to throw a baseball to hit the photo in the face. Also there was a photo of Senator Taft taken many years ago at a public forum at which Earl Browder had also been invited to speak. The photo showing Taft and Browder was prominently flaunted by opponents of the senator and was never disavowed by the opposing candidate; in fact, he is accused of flaunting it himself. He lost and what he did would not be subject to Senate rules of conduct or discipline.

Nor should the anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic literature circulated in the mails during and between political campaigns be overlooked or the activities of national labor unions which invade various states with crews of campaign smearers who continue to receive salaries from unions and make use of federal law. Corporations employ also give their time to campaigns and keep on receiving their regular salaries. This needs no Senate investigation—just some prosecutions by the Department of Justice.

The answer to such of this type of thing, to be sure, is "pittiful publicity." Extreme tactics usually boomerang and make voters for the candidate who is attacked. But it will disappoint many observers to read that this Senate subcommittee seems to have lost faith in the capacity of the people to deal with these matters themselves at the polls. For the subcommittee says:

"It is not a sufficient defense to say 'let the people themselves judge the charges.' The fact is that the people themselves are not in possession of sufficient reliable information upon which to judge irresponsible accusations of disloyalty."

And who in this case kept the people from making that very judgment when the charges of disloyalty against various persons involved in making government policy were being examined last year by the Tydings Committee? It was a group of loyal, patriotic, but mistaken senators who voted for secret sessions and then by a partisan vote adopted a staff-written report which was drafted in such manner that the real evidence could not be seen by the press and impartial observers. AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Aug. 5—I am a baseball devotee, as distinguished from the fan, or fanatic, who is either imbecilic in his enthusiasm or a faker who pretends to be, which is worse. As a devotee, I have been conscious of a growing inconvenience, an uneasiness, caused by the decline in the class and manners of the clientele. My time as a sport writer began after that pioneer period when the players, themselves were, with the usual few exceptions, a pack of foul-mouthed bums, so disorderly that decent hotels wouldn't take them, and probably even more corrupt than the periodic exposes showed they were.

John McGraw did his bit to reform the condition. He was a cocky fellow who couldn't bear to be looked down upon and therefore taught his rough-necks to wear shirts instead of sweaters and even wear jackets into dining rooms and take off their caps in elevators. For his personal, social life he maintained a perverse preference for a Broadway-theatrical-gambling-house type of border-line cases including bucketeers and confidence men, and he had some gaudy fights on his own time. But he drew the line at riotous behavior on the ball-field except as initiated by John McGraw under provocation, which he considered due process, and was a gentleman capable of astonishing courtesy when he chose to be. He showed evidence of good raising by contrasting with many contemporaries who had no class.

The patrons of the earlier era, probably were not much better than the players for they certainly were not gentlemen of wealth and the fact that they had no more important business than to sit around on week-day afternoons watching other loafers play ball puts the burden of proof on them. Thousands of bums were picked up by the cops in poolrooms and barrel-houses and given

All up and down the Missouri, which lived up to its name again and left its "Big Muddy" imprint on the cities and towns, the farms and industries of the river valley, the battle cry is "it will never happen again."

There have been similar cries before, but year after year the Missouri and the Mississippi rise over their banks to flout man-made efforts to keep the waters within bounds. The cry is stronger this year, however, for this time the rivers went on their worst rampage in a century.

And there have been lots of plans to control the floods, too, along with lots of arguments over their merits.

Currently, the Pick-Sloan Plan seems to have the approval of Congress. In the last six years, more than a billion dollars have been appropriated for this system, a 10-state inter-agency affair. In its entirety, it would include 105 dams, plus control basins, and levees from Sioux City, Ia., to St. Louis. Over all, it is a vast five billion dollar project.

Thus far it is 25 per cent completed, but a lot of the rest of the plan has been bypassed by Congress for urgent defense work. Lt. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, co-author of the plan, answered criticism of failure by pointing out that the plan must be carried out in its entirety to insure flood protection for all parts of the basin.

There is other criticism which embraces the whole idea of the Pick-Sloan Plan. Opponents claim it is a piecemeal program enmeshed in politics and conflicting local interests. These critics want a Missouri Valley Authority, like the successful TVA. A bill for an MVA is pending in Congress, but it has been pending for several years without action.

With this year's flood damage in Kansas and Missouri already estimated at nearly a billion dollars, it would seem to be a time for action, rather than argument, for argument will not hold back the flood waters.

If the Missouri Valley people are determined "it will never happen again," the differences between the two plans must be resolved quickly to bring about measures that will work in the near future.

Then Congress must do its part in working out the necessary legislation, remembering that stemming the Big Muddy is urgent defense, too—against a billion dollar enemy.

The stenographers who can take one hundred forty words a minute are right up to par. Now they'd like to have a few bosses who could reach that pace.

TELEVISION AND LEARNING

Western Reserve University will offer a television audience this fall the first opportunity to obtain college credits for courses of study presented by television. The university will telecast two courses, in introductory psychology and comparative European literature.

The idea of televising college courses is an extension of the system in effect at many schools where part of the requirements for college graduation can be fulfilled through the mails. Educators in recent years have been making serious efforts to bring education to the many people who cannot come to the campus to get it.

Because of the efforts of these educators, learning has become an influence in the lives of many people who would otherwise have to do without it. Such influences are needed today and those who work toward spreading them should be commended.

If the corner candy store stocks penny candy these days, one of the first problems of parents is to explain to the little ones just what's a penny.

BOUQUETS FOR THE LIVING

Often when a public figure dies or leaves office he receives finally the praise and kind words which were denied him while he was in public service. This is true of people we meet in ordinary day-to-day situations as well as of those in the public eye.

People in their everyday living frequently become discouraged. There are times when

THE LAW AND THE REDS

The law of libel is whatever a jury of 12 citizens says it is and rarely can a lawyer advise a client on the subject, in advance, how a jury will react when a case may come to trial. The lawyers therefore play safe on the dictum: "When in doubt leave it out."

If journalists or radio commentators were to accept the safe advice of the lawyers, nothing could be published against Communists, traitors, gamblers, racketeers and such until after a case had been tried in a court. As a matter of fact, it is usually the proceedings of courageous reporters that finally force public action against those criminals and subversives who have found sanctuary in the rules of evidence.

Judge Henry Clay Greenberg of the New York Supreme Court makes this point:

"... Some newspapers announce in big type that an investigator has called someone a Communist. Then some days later, if at all, these newspapers print a reply, perhaps on an inside page. Reputations are destroyed without the grant of an adequate defense. People are tried in a diabolical sense without due process of the law. This is not true of most newspapers, but papers are in essence a daily, current, hurried reporting instrument. They have no leisure."

This is nonsense. I should like to see Judge Greenberg's list of those whom the newspapers called "Communists," who were, in fact, not Communists.

Actually, the press has been more accurate, more careful, more thorough in its investigations than any other agency, including the Department of Justice, in ferreting out these agents of Stalin, however they may be hidden. I cite my own articles on the "Amerasia Case" which have proved to be correct and which literally took years of work, involving checks on material going back to 1934—before there was an "Amerasia" magazine.

I also cite the work of Frederick Voigtman, Howard Rushmore, Victor Riesel, Frank Waldrop, Westbrook Pegler, Bert Andrews, John O'Donnell, Ogden R. Reid, Victor Lasky, Ralph De Toledano, Freda Utey, Irene Corbally Kuhn, Frank Hanchiger, Frank Chodorov, and many others I could include, particularly the editors of "The Freeman" magazine. Such careful investigators have opened the door to evidence against those who sought to destroy our country in the interest of Communists.

When the judge says, "they have no leisure," he talks nonsense. Most of us who are employed to write on such matters are given ample time to do a thorough job. I have held onto one 700 word story as long as a year, checking for accuracy and finally getting the facts. I published long ago some of the state which is now being brought out at the McCarran hearings. I do not say that in self-praise or in self-defense, or to prove an exception.

I simply want to make the point that judges, sitting on high benches, in black gowns, in the aura of the sacred, do not always know what they are talking about.

For instance, most of us in this profession are constantly being pestered by House-lawyers, who check on libel, because of an obituary by Judge Stanley Fuld, to the effect that to call a man a Communist, unless he has so declared himself, is libel per se. To this they add, "Do you know that he is a Communist now, today when you say it?"

They have some theory about a Communist Party card because somewhere they read or heard that the Communist Party issues such documents, but do not know that the Communist Party ceased to issue such documents.

The Communists naturally take full advantage of the timidity of the lawyers and the general fear of law suits. Radio networks are particularly frightened and therefore substitute murder stories and so-called humor for what they call controversial commentaries. The Communists are thus given a weapon by our courts and lawyers which they use against us all the time.

Never was this better demonstrated than in the Alger Hiss case or in the present difficulties of Frederick Vanderbilt Field. The lawyers feel that under the Fuld obituary their clients may get into trouble if the truth is published in advance of its becoming "privileged" or established by a decision in the courts.

When our newspapers are run by lawyers, we shall have no news. We shall have qualifying phrases and meaningless adjectives.

The whole question before American newspapers and even radio is whether the people are entitled to the truth or must we suppress the truth until the lawyers find it convenient for us to tell it. (Copyright, 1951, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

KEEP CHILD QUIET DURING POLIO EPIDEMIC

There have been so many epidemics of infantile paralysis that physicians are learning to recognize cases earlier and so prevent much of the paralysis that accompanies the disease.

In Annals of Internal Medicine, Dr. John R. Paul (Yale University) points out that the average series of infantile paralysis (poliomyelitis) in succeeding epidemics, contains a decreasing percentage of persons over age 15. There is no explanation for this fact but it is found that the percentage of cases which do not result in permanent paralysis is apparently decreasing. It is because so many older individuals now contract infantile paralysis that physicians use the name poliomyelitis instead of infantile paralysis.

Symptoms of poliomyelitis found in both early and late cases are fever, vomiting and headache, whether or not the disease progresses to paralysis.

The type of onset in young children seems to differ from that of older children and adults. Pain and a quiet onset are more likely to occur in patients over 15 years of age than in those under that age.

Once there is a rise in temperature, it is believed that the virus or organism of poliomyelitis may already be in the central nervous system and the patient should be handled accordingly. Once the virus reaches the central nervous system, there are areas in which there is numbness or partial anesthesia, pain in the limbs and then follows stiff neck, stiff back and increase or exaggeration in one or more of the reflexes. These symptoms may be late in coming but Dr. Paul points out that careful handling of the patient, keeping him quiet and off his feet, may delay or prevent paralysis.

Where onset is gradual or insidious, exercise or exertion should be avoided. However, in 80 per cent or more of those under the age of 10, the onset is likely to be sudden, whereas it is sudden in only one-half the patients over age 15.

What is the lesson for parents from above information? Whenever there is fever present during an epidemic of poliomyelitis, the child should be treated as a polio case, that is, all physical exercise should be avoided and he should be treated cautiously and kept under observation for about 10 days.

When the youngster is tired, has sore throat and a slight fever, he should be kept quiet until a physician takes over the case.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PLARSON

Washington—Reason behind the alarming war-warnings made by Secretary of Defense Marshall and Army Secretary Pace is the latest intelligence from the Balkans. This reports, among other things, that Communist medical units have arrived along the Bulgarian-Yugoslav border.

Medical units do not participate in ordinary troop maneuvers. They are the last to arrive before military action begins.

Maneuvers along the Yugoslav border in themselves may not mean much. They have been going on for months, and when I visited the Bulgarian border last February, I interviewed refugees who had just escaped from behind the iron curtain with news of new Russian concentrations in certain areas. However, latest U. S. intelligence indicates that this has increased.

Bulgaria's army of around 200,000 men is now reported equipped with Soviet combat vehicles, heavy artillery, and new type of fighter plane more powerful than the Yak. The Bulgarian army is under General Atanasov, a Soviet citizen trained in Russia, though of Bulgarian origin. His command post has been moved from Sofia to the field.

All along the Rumanian and Bulgarian sides of the Yugoslav border, a strip of land has been completely cleared and a Siegfried line of pillboxes built behind it.

This could be part of the war of nerves against Tito, or it could mean that the Kremlin is ready to give Tito the business. Late August or September, after the harvest is in, always has been the time when dictators get trigger-happy.

Crime Probe Stymied
Senator Carl Hayden of Arizona, one of the most conscientious and respected members of the Senate has taken a strange stand regarding the crime committee. It puzzles his colleagues in the Senate.

As chairman of the powerful Senate Rules Committee, Hayden has flatly refused to authorize more money to be spent on the crime probe. This has caused the crime committee, now chair-manned by conscientious Herbert O'Connor of Maryland, to withdraw its investigators from New York and other areas. It also means that the committee will have to wind up its work around September.

If Hayden were not such a respected member of the Senate, his colleagues would suspect that pressure had been brought from certain political elements in touch with the hoodlums who base around Phox-nix. That city has been one of the centers for the illicit narcotic trade that comes up from Mexico.

Three times Senator Hayden has been approached by senators who asked for more funds for the crime probe. Each time he has refused. Under senatorial courtesy, Hayden, as chairman of the rules committee, has the power to recommend funds for all Senate investigations, and if he refuses, it is difficult to go over his head.

In contrast, Hayden continues to dish out funds for all sorts of other Senate probes while throttling an investigation which has done more to clean up the big cities of the U. S. A. than anything in half a century.

Washington Pipeline
Friends of Ex-Navy Secretary Matthews, now ambassador to Ireland, are advising him to see Eddie Dowling's new show "Forger Be Damned," if he wants to understand some of the problems between North and South Ireland. Entirely aside from the political implications, the play's a smash hit.

U. S. District Judge Robert Inch in New York took the trouble to write a 13-page opinion on why he could not set aside a guilty-of-treason plea by Lt. James Monti whom this column exposed for working with the Nazis in Italy. . . . In contrast, U. S. District Judge Matt McGuire in Washington slapped out an oral opinion "denied" in dismissing a petition by a coal digger to examine the books of the United Mine Workers welfare fund. George Livingood of Uniontown, Pa., was fired out of the union by John L. Lewis when he challenged some of the expenditures of the miners' welfare fund, claiming that the miners who earn the money for the fund have a right to see how the money is spent. This gets to the bottom of union rights, but quick-tempered Judge McGuire didn't even bother to explain why he denied the right to examine. . . . Not even Ezra Van Horn, the mine owners' representative on the miners' welfare fund, was permitted to see the books.

Gratuities in High Places

Washington observers are wondering whether the White House is going to follow the excellent precedent set by the secretary of the army, Frank Pace, regarding gratuities.

Secretary Pace relieved Brig. Gen. David J. Crawford when he found that Crawford's overnight hotel suite was paid for by an army contractor; also used army trucks to haul shrimpers for his home. Pace's forthright action met approval everywhere.

Meanwhile, the President has at his right hand some gentlemen who also accepted favors. For instance:

1. His military aide, General Vaughan, accepted deep freezes from a company needing favors from the government.

2. The President's personal doctor, Maj. Gen. Wallace Graham, speculated in commodities at a time when the government was buying food for Europe. He was not relieved, as was Gen. Crawford, but promoted.

3. The presidential aide in charge of picking government personnel, Donald Dawson, was entertained free in a hotel in Miami.

4. The President's appointment secretary, Matt Connolly, enjoys the hospitality of an American Airlines vice president for which he has done important favors.

Maybe Secretary Pace should run the White House staff for a day or so and enforce the excellent standard he has set for the army.

Question Asked Whether Senate Report on Elections Is Merely Publicity Piece

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 6 — Is the Senate subcommittee on elections in earnest about cleaning up American political campaigns or is its latest report on the Maryland contest just a piece of ephemeral publicity?

The report calls attention to the fact that it is "the inherent right under our system of government of each state to choose its representatives in congress" and that the Senate in "exercising its constitutional right to be the judge of the qualifications of its members" has developed a "misleading" such right of each state and must require the strongest and most substantial evidence before unseating a senator and nullifying the action of the electorate of a state.

Thereupon the subcommittee says flatly that "the facts developed from the evidence before this committee are not sufficient in our judgment to recommend the unseating of Senator Butler."

If the committee had stopped there, its work would have been in keeping with tradition. But the committee issued a long analysis of the campaign criticisms, the tactics and statements of only one candidate, the Republican, ignoring entirely the famous "white-wash" report which was sponsored earlier by the opposing Senator, a Democrat, and formed the basis for the bitter campaign itself.

To deal only with one set of unfair attacks and not with an earlier set of unfair accusations which furnished the provocation is not to make an impartial study. There is another committee of the Senate under the chairmanship of Senator McCarran of Nevada which now is investigating un-American activities and Communist behavior and it is taking up some of the same charges which, due to the Tydings committee "white-wash," aroused anti-Communists not only in Maryland but outside of that state who helped to defeat the Democratic candidate, Senator Tydings. Nobody can justly question the loyalty or the patriotism of the former Maryland Senator but there are many who have questioned and will question his judgment in failing to make a thorough investigation of the charges before his Senate committee was formed. The Senate's resolution which ordered the inquiry.

The Senate subcommittee is right in denouncing the innuendoes that were used in the campaign against Senator Tydings. Likewise, it candidly admits that "no specific standard of improper campaign conduct or acts have been set up as guideposts."

It is conceded by the Senate subcommittee that the issue as "between fair comment and political defamation in the conduct of a campaign is a novel one." It then proceeds to make some suggestions for legislation which would not only be wholly impracticable to carry out but would result in federal laws certain to be declared unconstitutional.

The remedy of the aggrieved candidate has been and always is to sue for libel under state laws. The most-discussed and properly denounced "tabloid" newspaper, especially printed for the campaign, which showed Senator Tydings in a "composite photograph" sitting alongside of Earl Browder, a Communist witness at the hearings and which bore a caption that implied the senator was treating the witness sympathetically or with excessive politeness is not a violation of federal state law dealing with elections.

The picture was labeled "composite." It was despicable and utterly indefensible from the standpoint of fairness but so also are many of the political cartoons distributed during campaigns and printed in regular newspapers. This practice is fully protected by the Constitution.

The subcommittee goes too far, therefore, in recommending legislation to cover "all types of 'composites' whether they be newspaper pictures, voice recordings, motion pictures, or any other means or medium of conveying a misrepresenting composite impression."

This would certainly rule out many cartoons and one wonders what political majority in the Senate or House is to pass judgment on fairness or unfairness of such cartoons when a defeated candidate makes a squawk.

If any Senate committee really wants to investigate unfair tactics in political campaigns, there are other things worth examining as examples too, such as the innuendoes cast by President Truman himself in 1948 that Governor Dewey was giving aid to the Communists, the "dirty politics" charges in the recent Lehman-Dulles senatorial campaign and the scurrilous literature circulated in 1950 against Senator Taft in Ohio. At an outing given by a CIO union during the campaign a picture of Senator Taft was displayed under which only his initials—"R. A. T."—were printed in large letters and onlookers were offered a chance at 10 cents to throw a baseball to hit the photo in the face. Also there was circulated in different parts of the state a photo of Senator Taft taken many years ago at a public forum at which Earl Browder had also been invited to speak. The photo showing Taft and Browder was prominently flaunted by opponents of the senator and was never disavowed by the opposing candidate. In fact, he is accused of flaunting it himself. He lost and what he did would not be subject to Senate rules of conduct or discipline.

Nor should the anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic literature circulated in the mails during and between political campaigns be overlooked or the activities of national labor unions which invade various states with crews of campaign staffers who continue to receive salaries from unions, in violation of federal law. Corporation employees also give their time to campaigns and keep on receiving their regular salaries. This needs no Senate investigation—just some prosecutions by the Department of Justice.

The answer to much of this type of thing, to be sure, is "pittiful publicity." Extreme tactics usually boomerang and make votes for the candidate who is attacked. But it will disappoint many observers in that this Senate subcommittee seems to have lost faith in the capacity of the people to deal with these matters themselves at the polls. For the subcommittee says:

"It is not a sufficient defense to say 'let the people themselves judge the charges. The fact is that the peoples themselves are not in possession of sufficient reliable information upon which to judge irreproachable accusations of disloyalty.'"

And who in this case kept the people from making that very judgment when the charges of disloyalty against various persons involved in making government policy were being examined last year by the Tydings Committee? It was a group of loyal, patriotic, but mistaken senators who voted for secret sessions and then by a partisan vote adopted a staff-written report which was drafted in such a manner that the real evidence could not be appreciated by the press and impartial observers. AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Aug. 5—I am a baseball devotee, as distinguished from the fan, or fanatic, who is either imbecilic in his enthusiasm or a faker who pretends to be, which is worse. As a devotee, I have been conscious of a growing inconvenience, an uneasiness, caused by the decline in the class and manners of the clientele. My time as a sport writer before after that pioneer period when the players, themselves, were, with the usual few exceptions, a pack of foul-mouthed bums, so disorderly that decent hotels wouldn't take them, and probably even more corrupt than the periodic exposures showed they were.

John McGraw did his bit to reform this condition. He was a cocky fellow who couldn't bear to be looked down upon and therefore taught his rough-necks to wear shirts instead of sweaters and even wear jackets into dining rooms and take off their caps in elevators. For his personal, social life he maintained a surprising preference for a Broadway-theatrical-gambling-house type of border-line cases, including buckeeters and confidence men, and he had some gaudy fights on his own time. But he drew the line at riotous behavior on the ball-field except as initiated by John McGraw under provocation, which he considered due process, and was a gentleman capable of astonishing courtesy when he chose to be. He showed evidence of good raising by contrasting with many contemporaries who had no class.

The patrons of the earlier era, probably were not much better than the players for they certainly were not gentlemen of wealth and the fact that they had no more important business than to sit around on week-day afternoons watching other lofers play ball puts the burden of proof on them. Thousands of them were picked up by the cops in pool-rooms and barrel-houses and given

SECOND CHURCH WEDDING

A letter today explains: "Inasmuch as I'm a widow bride (early thirties) I feel that I'm not entitled to have much of a wedding. The trouble is, however, that the bridegroom has never been married and his family are the ones who feel that we should have a wedding in church so their relatives and friends can come; also to have a reception. My family gave me a big wedding and reception the first time I married and I think, in addition to the above objections to a second wedding, it's an imposition on them. But please advise as to just how much would be in good taste?"

It is entirely proper to be married in church and to have the church ceremony followed by a small reception. You send personal notes to members of both families and also to people whom you consider real friends, but you do not send out engraved invitations to a general visiting list of acquaintances. You may wear white so long as you wear a hat instead of a veil, and you may have one attendant (a maid or matron of honor) but no bridesmaids.

No Reply Necessary
Dear Mrs. Post: We have received an invitation to an evening "at home" in honor of a 50th wedding anniversary. There is no request for a reply. Are we supposed to answer anyway?

Answer: Without any request for a reply it is not required that you answer such a general invitation.

Announcing Yourself to Usher
Dear Mrs. Post: Several weeks ago you told someone who asked what she should say to the usher who seated her at a wedding, that it was not necessary to say anything. I thought you were supposed to greet him and tell him whether you were a friend of the bride or the groom's family so he knew where to seat you.

Answer: You do not have a conversation with the usher but you do tell him whether you would rather sit on the groom's side or the bride's side. If you do not say anything, he seats you on the side which has the most available seats.

Block Dance Is Planned Tonight

Members of Musicians Local, 215, of the American Federation of Musicians, will stage a block dance tonight beginning at 8 o'clock on the block adjacent to Cornell Park. Music for dancing will continue until 10 o'clock.

Tonight's music will be under the direction of Ole Christensen and a 13-piece orchestra. The program will mark the fifth in a series of Monday night dances planned at the various parks.

Music for all dances is furnished by Local 215 through the music performance trust fund. It is an extension of a program of public services originated by the Recording and Transcription Fund of the American Federation of Musicians, James C. Petrillo, president.

The final park dance is tentatively scheduled for Forsyth Park during the two days of the annual Ulster County Fair and Field Day.

A plan is now under consideration by Mike Marchuk and Pete Ferraro, Local 215 coordinators, to hold the final dance early in the evening of the first fair day. Announcement as to the exact time will be made.

Spend Quiet Sunday
Acapulco, Mexico, Aug. 6 (AP)—Frank Sinatra and Ava Gardner spent a quiet Sunday in their borrowed hideaway after a pre-dawn tussle with a cameraman. Finishing an all-night tour of the hot-spots early Sunday morning, the vacationing sweethearts had their picture snapped by a news photographer. An unidentified male companion grabbed the camera and returned it only after the photographer agreed to destroy the film.

Frank and Ava, who may marry when the crooner's wife divorces him, are living in a mansion lent to them by a Mexican friend.

Movie Is Shifted
Due to the technical difficulties involved in regard to proper amplification, the movie scheduled for St. Mary's Park tonight has been shifted to Forsyth Park. The movie She Wore a Yellow Ribbon stars John Wayne and is an interesting western which every member of the family will enjoy. The movie will be shown at Cornell Park Tuesday night and at Hasbrouck Park Wednesday night.

Leaves From Boyle's
Notebook

By RELMAN MORIN
(For HAL BOYLE)

New York — The mayor of a town in upstate New York came through with an interesting idea the other day.

It was about giving intelligence tests to newspaper reporters. He said that if a man failed in the test, a newspaper should be prohibited by law from hiring him as a reporter. The mayor said there ought to be such a law, and he asked the City Council to write and enact it.

A couple things about the mayor's idea struck me right away.

You will notice that he specified reporters. He didn't say whether the law should be applied to anybody else on the paper. Apparently, he doesn't care what kind of an I.Q. they have over on the news desk, or down in the business office. He doesn't insist that the circulation manager should be able to define the second law of thermodynamics—much less give the date when it was passed.

So what's going to happen? A fellow come into the city room looking for a job. He knows his binet batting average is pretty low. There is only one thing for him to do, admit it, and say, "I'm too dumb to be a reporter, but do you need a good city editor?"

The other disturbing thing about the mayor's idea is that he doesn't specify what kind of intelligence test should be used on reporters. There are several, you know.

For instance, I hope they don't use the ink-blot test. It's for backward children, and, to this day, I have a lot of trouble with it.

In this test, they show you an album of eccentric shapes and patterns. As you look at them, you are supposed to tell the examiner what they make you think of. (No coaching from the audience, please.)

Actually, the blot looks exactly like a blot, and nothing else whatever. However, in a puppy-like effort to please, you say: "This looks like three tropical fish swimming toward a window on the 41st floor of the Empire State Building where there is a meeting of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in session."

The examiner instantly writes down in his note book: "Introvert—hated his maternal grand-mother—probably has flat feet—intelligence, pre-Cambrian or at best, Neanderthal."

Then there is the word-test, and if they require all journalists to take that one, I am afraid the carnage will be ferocious.

One of my friends, a very good reporter, too, came back from the front one afternoon during the last war. He was very excited.

He said, "gee, we had a close call today. I thought sure we were going to be captured. The Germans had us completely surrounded in a semi-circle."

Coleman Carnival
To Open Tonight

Equipment of Coleman Brothers Shows has arrived at the new Spring Lake Park showgrounds and is being set up in readiness for tonight's opening under the auspices of the Excelsior Hose Company.

The Coleman carnival has played in this city regularly for 25 years and arrived here from Booneville, where it played during a fair. It leaves the end of the week to appear at the Middletown Fair.

The show consists of 10 shows, 12 rides and the regular concessions. A free-act feature will be the 125-foot dive of Sol Solomon into a shallow tank.

Kingston city and town of Ulster officials will be on hand at 7 p. m. today to "cut the ribbon" opening the Spring Lake Park showgrounds, recently improved by the owner, Robert Pardee.

Among those expected to be present are Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, Supervisor James Martin and Alderman Robert C. Cullum of the Twelfth Ward, Supervisor Horace Boice, Justices of the Peace Percy Bush and Harold Macholdt and Councilmen John Acker and Clarence Rappleyea of the town of Ulster.

Dear Mrs. Post: We have received an invitation to an evening "at home" in honor of a 50th wedding anniversary. There is no request for a reply. Are we supposed to answer anyhow?

Answer: Without any request for a reply it is not required that you answer such a general invitation.

Announcing Yourself to Usher

Dear Mrs. Post: Several weeks ago you told someone who asked what she should say to the usher who seated her at a wedding, that it was not necessary to say anything. I thought you were supposed to greet him and tell him whether you were a friend of the bride or the groom's family so he knew where to seat you.

Answer: You do not have a conversation with the usher but you would rather sit on the groom's side or the bride's side. If you do not say anything, he seats you on the side which has the most available seats.

Are you planning to give a hostess-alone dinner party. Mrs. Post's booklet No. 503 includes suggestions for the menu and details for serving. She is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Block Dance Is Planned Tonight

Members of Musicians Local, 215, of the American Federation of Musicians, will stage a block dance tonight beginning at 8 o'clock on the block adjacent to Cornell Park. Music for dancing will continue until 10 o'clock.

Tonight's music will be under the direction of Ole Christensen and a 13-piece orchestra. The program will mark the fifth in a series of Monday night dances planned at the various parks.

Music for all dances is furnished by Local 215 through the music performance trust fund. It is an extension of a program of public services originated by the Recording and Transcription Fund of the American Federation of Musicians, James C. Petrillo, president.

The final park dance is tentatively scheduled for Forsyth Park during the two days of the annual Ulster County Fair and Field Day.

A plan is now under consideration by Mike Marchuk and Pete Ferraro, Local 215 coordinators, to hold the final dance early in the evening of the first fair day. Announcement as to the exact time will be made.

Spend Quiet Sunday

Acapulco, Mexico, Aug. 6 (AP)—Frank Sinatra and Ava Gardner spent a quiet Sunday in their borrowed hideaway after a pre-dawn tussle with a cameraman. Finishing an all-night tour of the hot spots early Sunday morning, the vacationing sweethearts had their picture snapped by a news photographer. An unidentified male companion grabbed the camera and returned it only after the photographer agreed to destroy the film. Frank and Ava, who may marry when the crooner's wife divorces him, are living in a mansion lent to them by a Mexican friend.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By RELMAN MORIN
(For HAL BOYLE)

New York — The mayor of a town in upstate New York came through with an interesting idea the other day.

It was about giving intelligence tests to newspaper reporters. He said that if a man failed in the test, a newspaper should be prohibited, by law, from hiring him as a reporter. The mayor said there ought to be such a law, and he asked the City Council to write and enact it.

A couple things about the mayor's idea struck me right away.

You will notice that he specified reporters. He didn't say whether the law should be applied to anybody else on the paper. Apparently, he doesn't care what kind of an I.Q. they have over on the news desk, or down in the business office. He doesn't insist that the circulation manager should be able to define the second law of thermodynamics—much less give the date when it was passed.

So what's going to happen?

A fellow came into the city room looking for a job. He knows his binet batting average is pretty low. There is only one thing for him to do, admit it, and say, "I'm too dumb to be a reporter, but do you need a good city editor?"

The other disturbing thing about the mayor's idea is that he doesn't specify what kind of intelligence test should be used on reporters. There are several, you know.

For instance, I hope they don't use the ink-blot test. It's for backward children, and, to this day, I have a lot of trouble with it.

In this test, they show you an album of eccentric shapes and patterns. As you look at them, you are supposed to tell the examiner what they make you think of. (No coaching from the audience, please.)

Actually, the blot looks exactly like a blot, and nothing else whatever. However, in a puppy-like effort to please, you say: "This looks like three tropical fish swimming toward a window on the 41st floor of the Empire State Building where there is a meeting of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in session."

The examiner instantly writes down in his note book: "Introverted—hated his maternal grand mother—probably has flat feet—intelligence, pre-Cambrian or at best, Neanderthal."

Then there is the word-test, and if they require all journalists to take that one, I am afraid the carnage will be ferocious.

One of my friends, a very good reporter, too, came back from the front one afternoon during the last war. He was very excited.

He said, "gee, we had a close call today. I thought sure we were going to be captured. The Germans had us completely surrounded in a semi-circle."

He won't last long, if the mayor has his way.

One for Politicians

But while all of us are over in one corner fitting blocks together to qualify as reporters, it might be a good idea if all the politicians in the world were taking different kind of test. It would embrace—

1. A speaking acquaintance with the Eighth, Ninth and Tenth Commandments.

2. The faculty of distinguishing between black and white.

3. The ability to speak at least basic English.

4. A definition of the words "promise" and "campaign promise."

You understand that, personally, I'm not worried about my future even if that intelligence-test law does flunk me out of the newspaper business.

I have a standing offer of a job as mayor.

Coleman Carnival To Open Tonight

Equipment of Coleman Brothers Shows has arrived at the new Spring Lake Park showgrounds and is being set up in readiness for tonight's opening under the auspices of the Excelsior Hose Company.

The Coleman carnival has played in this city regularly for 25 years and arrived here from Booneville, where it played during a fair. It leaves the end of the week to appear at the Middletown Fair.

The show consists of 10 shows, 12 rides and the regular concessions. A free-act feature will be the 125-foot dive of Sol Solomon into a shallow tank.

Kingston city and town of Ulster officials will be on hand at 7 p. m. today to "cut the ribbon" opening the Spring Lake Park showgrounds, recently improved by the owner, Robert Pardee. Among those expected to be present are Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, Supervisor James Martin and Alderman Robert C. Cullum of the Twelfth Ward, Supervisor Horace Boice, Justices of the Peace Percy Bush and Harold Macholdt and Councilmen John Acker and Clarence Rappleyea of the town of Ulster.

Movie Is Shifted

Due to the technical difficulties involved in regard to proper amplification, the movie scheduled for St. Mary's Park tonight has been shifted to Forsyth Park. The movie "She Wore a Yellow Ribbon" stars John Wayne and is an interesting western which every member of the family will enjoy. The movie will be shown at Cornell Park Tuesday night and at Hasbrouck Park Wednesday night.

Our Kids—and Money

By FRANK TRIPP

Good could come from a better understanding of the psychological effect of money on our children; how the means by which they acquire it will affect their future lives. Experience seems to prove that the ones who get it easily will not be likely to value it highly or have it long. This yarn has to do with getting it the hard way.

Mixed scrap iron now brings as high as around $25 a ton, which is $1.25 per 100 pounds. That's considerably better than the 30 cents a hundred that the scrap man paid to Joe-Joe McLaughlin and me when we were in the junk business. Particularly since it took the two of us all day to collect 100 pounds, then wheel it in wheel barrows two miles to the junk yard.

The playless Saturdays that kids once spent in such enterprises loomed before me while I watched Steve, our 10-year-old grandson, sprinkle the road to lay the dust back of our house. Fanny made a deal with him at ten cents a sprinkle. Joe-Joe and I used to quarrel over which should sprinkle Mr. Holmes' garden for free. We'd weld a garden hose to us was an outing.

Today's kids have a better head for business and their parents are more on the sucker side. Many a Saturday Joe-Joe and I worked all day for a quarter. If a neighbor gave us a penny to run to the store our mothers would scold her for spoiling us.

THE FIRST DOLLAR that we accumulated we changed into one of the silver dollars which were plentiful then. That wasn't satisfactory, so we changed it back into 20 nickels, which seemed like a lot more money and would jingle in our pockets.

Our mothers may have had a selfish motive in demanding that neighbors not pay us for doing little chores. Perhaps they foresaw the day which has come, when we pay our own kids for doing things which were routine duty in our childhood.

Is it a good or a bad influence? Does it prepare the child to earn his way or does it make him avaricious? Does it put a price upon deeds of helpfulness which

"A big dispute about penalty doubles has split our bridge club right down the middle," relates a Pittsburgh correspondent. "One group says that a penalty double is not to be monkeyed with. You double when you can surely beat the contract, and a partner who takes out your penalty double is one degree lower in the social scale than a horse thief."

"The other group says that most penalty doubles are merely bids. Like other bids, they are offered without absolute assurance and may be taken out fearlessly even by nice respectable maiden ladies."

"The argument started as a result of this hand. Nothing very terrible happened on the hand, as you will note, but the argument is fierce just the same."

spade, and got a heart return. West continued hearts, and East discarded a club on the fourth round. This limited South to two club tricks and four trump tricks.

"Nobody had any complaint about the play of the cards or about South's third-hand opening bid of one spade. The argument was about North's double of two diamonds and South's run out to two spades."

"Should North double two diamonds? If not, why not? If he does double, should South accept it or run out to two spades?"

No expert would double two diamonds. Such a double warns the enemy to find a better spot. If they do so, the North hand is worthless both offensively and defensively. For example, if West runs to two hearts, he will make it. Even if West stays at two diamonds, he will probably be set only one trick.

If North does double, South's correct course depends on what he thinks of North's game. If North is a good player, South should unhesitatingly bid two spades. If North is a poor enough player to double on a hand that's worthless except against diamonds, South may pass. Even so he might be forgiven for bidding two spades.

The subject of penalty doubles cannot be cleared up in a single day, so I intend to continue the discussion in other articles this week.

Sheep Rush In

Skoplje, Yugoslavia (AP) — It's worth your hide to venture across the border from Yugoslavia into Bulgaria these days. Thirteen sheep found that out recently. They decided the grass grew greener on the other side of the border, and crossed over. The invasion didn't catch the Bulgarian guards napping. In precise military fashion, they began an encircling movement and then opened fire. Seven sheep became lamb chop luxuries for the guardsmen's mess. Six scared but unscathed survivors hotfooted it for home.

Authorities Deny Inoculation Story

A report that a large number of dogs in the Lucas avenue section of the city had reacted unfavorably to recent inoculation against rabies, was denied Saturday by the county health authorities.

In fact the record among the 8,000 dogs inoculated this year has been exceptionally good and few cases of adverse results have been reported.

This year a new type of inoculation was used with the serum being injected into the muscle of the dog rather than under the skin as in past years. The new type of serum is believed to have far longer lasting results. Serum injected into the muscle of the dog, like a muscular injection in a human, at times causes stiffness and soreness for a day or two which in certain types of tight muscled dogs may border on a condition of slight paralysis of the muscle affected.

However, Dr. Hoppenstedt, county veterinarian, stated Saturday that the number of cases of severe reaction has been extremely low, only a few cases having been reported. He stated that no report of any mass reaction had been received either from the city or county.

THE "KID" ACROSS THE STREET IS MIGHTY IMPORTANT TODAY TO AMERICA'S FUTURE. Your contribution in this campaign will make it possible for that boy to have a year of SCOUT TRAINING in good AMERICAN ideals.

HOW SCOUTING IS FINANCED

It is the policy of the Boy Scouts of America that the program be financed by public subscription from the people of the area in which the program is to be made effective. Only once a year is the opportunity of this investment in the boys of a community given to the citizens of that community. Since there is no other source of income it is necessary to secure sufficient money in the Annual Campaign for Funds to make possible and to maintain the administration of the Council for the year. The money received is used to help interested institutions properly organize Packs, Troops, and Explorer groups to insure permanency; to obtain trained professional Executives in guiding the movement and interpreting policies; office service to Units and Institutions; to publish bulletins, periodicals and other literature to help leaders; for the training of leaders through organized courses in all phases of the Scouting Program; for the development of District Committees to make Scouting available to all boys; for the organization, training, and guidance of a Commissioner Staff to service Troops, Packs and Explorer Units; for the organization and direction of inter-Unit activities through the Commissioner Staff; for regular Courts of Honor and Boards of Review which makes possible the Advancement Program of Scouting; for the privilege and opportunity of attending a supervised Camp that has been specifically developed to insure a safe, wholesome and worthwhile Scouting experience for every Scout and Explorer.

Switch After 99 Years

Iowa City, Iowa (AP) — Many Iowa communities and even farmsteads are celebrating centennials this year but there'll be none at the

Joseph F. Buschmayer farm near here. For 99 successive years, the farm has harvested good crops of corn for the Buschmayer family. This year the place was seeded to clover, timothy and alfalfa—no corn. The reason is that Earl Joseph Buschmayer, 22, son of the owner, was called to army service. Without his son's aid, the elder Buschmayer passed up sowing his customary crop.

FINANCE CAMPAIGN
AUGUST 6th thru 18th includes Ulster and Greene Counties

"Together We Build"

THE "KID" ACROSS THE STREET IS MIGHTY IMPORTANT TODAY TO AMERICA'S FUTURE. Your contribution in this campaign will make it possible for that boy to have a year of SCOUT TRAINING in good AMERICAN ideals.

HOW SCOUTING IS FINANCED

It is the policy of the Boy Scouts of America that the program be financed by public subscription from the people of the area in which the program is to be made effective. Only once a year is the opportunity of this investment in the boys of a community given to the citizens of that community. Since there is no other source of income it is necessary to secure sufficient money in the Annual Campaign for Funds to make possible and to maintain the administration of the Council for the year. The money received is used to help interested institutions properly organize Packs, Troops, and Explorer groups to insure permanency; to obtain trained professional Executives in guiding the movement and interpreting policies; office service to Units and Institutions; to publish bulletins, periodicals and other literature to help leaders; for the training of leaders through organized courses in all phases of the Scouting Program; for the development of District Committees to make Scouting available to all boys; for the organization, training, and guidance of a Commissioner Staff to service Troops, Packs and Explorer Units; for the organization and direction of inter-Unit activities through the Commissioner Staff; for regular Courts of Honor and Boards of Review which makes possible the Advancement Program of Scouting; for the privilege and opportunity of attending a supervised Camp that has been specifically developed to insure a safe, wholesome and worthwhile Scouting experience for every Scout and Explorer.

Colonials Losing Streak by Trouncing Rome Colonels, 13 to 3

Canepa Stars In Box and at Bat; Drop Two Saturday

Rugmakers Overcome Nine-Run Deficit

The woes of the night before forgotten, the Colonials whacked Buck Etchison's Rome Colonels, 13 to 3, before 300 frigid fans last night at municipal stadium.

Not only did the victory snap an eight-game losing streak for Manager Johnny Sosh's tossers, but it kept them safely out of the cellar by a half game over the Colonels.

The Colonials get the chance to widen the gap between them and Rome in the twilight-night double-header starting at 6:30 p. m. this evening at the stadium.

Rugmakers Revenge
Amsterdam got a measure of revenge for an early season reversal in Kingston when they upended the Colonials, 10 to 5, and 13 to 10, in a two-night twinnish on Saturday night.

You had recalled that earlier in the campaign the Colonials had overcome a 10-0 deficit to whip the Rugmakers, 12 to 10 at the municipal stadium.

Saturday night it was 9-0 when the Colonials completed their first inning of the nightcap. But the Rugmakers rallied with seven in the fourth to move ahead 10-9 and relief pitcher Tom Mollica stopped the locals cold after the first inning.

Much more pleasant were the developments last night in the football weather at the uptown park near the perennial ice box on the quarry.

Canepa Wins
Vince Canepa, who once shut out Gloversville after the Colonials had dropped 11 in a row, again proved to be the strong man on the staff.

Vince scattered eight hits effectively, pounded a double and two singles and drove in a couple of tallies, as the Colonials made merry at the expense of five Rome fingers.

Kingston racked up a 5-1 lead in the first three innings and enjoyed a six-run spree in the seventh to cement the decision.

Etchison waved four relief hurlers in from the bullpen without much success. Johnny DiFresco atoned for a couple of fielding bobbles by rapping a double and two singles and driving in two runs. Manager Sosh, who had four hits in six trips in the second game Saturday, picked up a double and single last night. Gene Zubrinski connected for seven hits in the three games.

Fourteen men batted in the big nine-run opener in Amsterdam, with Gene Zubrinski hitting a double and single during the rally.

Manager Sosh's double and singles by Gene Zubrinski and Nick Marino were key blows in the first inning of the Sunday contest played before a top-coated crowd.

An outfield miscue and singles by DiFresco, Sosh and Canepa figured in two runs in the second.

The Colonials combined five walks with three hits, a double steal and a couple of sacrifices for six runs when 12 men batted in the sixth. Canepa and DiFresco banged two-run doubles and the Colonial third sacker slid home on the scoring end of a double steal with Sam Piacentini.

After tonight's twinnish, the Colonials take on the high flying Gloversville Glovers in single engagements on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Merchandise awards are planned for all games on the current home stand.

Football Yanks Fire Strader

New York, Aug. 6 (AP)—Norman (Red) Strader said today he has been fired as football coach of the New York Yanks, a member of the National Professional Football League.

Strader, former player and coach at St. Mary's College (Calif.), has directed the Yanks since 1946.

He said he was contacted by Ted Collins, owner of the football team, last Wednesday by telephone and asked to sign a statement of resignation.

"I wouldn't sign so I was fired," Strader added.

He said no reason was given for his release. His team won seven games and lost five last season.

Reports are that Earl (Greasy) Nene, former coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, will succeed him.

Softball Shaughnessy Will Start on Wednesday

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Two weeks ago you wouldn't have given a nickel for Cleveland's pennant chances. That was when the Indians, opening a vital eastern swing, dropped two straight games to the Yankees and fell 2½ games behind the league-leading New Yorkers.

But today the triumphant Tribe even money to dethrone the defending champion Yankees.

True, the homebound Indians still trail the New Yorkers. But the margin is now a mere half game.

Cleveland bounced back after two licks at Yankee Stadium and won the final game of the series, snapping a victory famine in the Bronx that had run through 13 contests. The Indians took inspiration from that and went on to take the series in Boston, Washington and Philadelphia.

The Tribe swept the four game series with the Athletics, closing with a pair of 6-3 triumphs yesterday to make it 11 consecutive wins against the A's. They go home with a 10-4 record in the east.

In sharp contrast, the Boston Red Sox suffered a wretched home stand, for them. They divided 14 games to fall into third place, 3½ behind the Yankees. New York, Cleveland, and Boston began the latest swing in a virtual first-place tie.

Red Sox Through
Detroit's Tigers put the finishing touches to the Red Sox' sorry home stay by winning a double header in Fenway Park, 3-1 and 8-5. That cost Boston two full games, as the Yankees whipped the St. Louis Browns, 6-2 and 4-3. The double triumph gave New York an 11-4 record against the west in its latest stand.

Chicago's fourth-place White Sox ended a poor eastern jaunt with a 6-5 victory in Washington. They return home with a 5-7 showing that cost them 4½ games to the league leaders. Trailing by only 2½ games two weeks ago, they now are seven games behind the Yanks.

The Brooklyn Dodgers continue to roll in the National League. They socked the Cincinnati Reds twice, 9-8 and 2-0, to increase their margin over the runnerup New York Giants to 9½ games. The Giants captured the rubber of their three-game set in St. Louis, 8-4.

Philadelphia's third-place Phils pummeled nine Pittsburgh pitchers for a 5-1 and 12-7 sweep of their twin bill. Boston's Braves whipped the Cubs twice in Chicago, 7-4 and 4-3.

Ralph Kiner of the Pirates hammered three home runs to raise his total to 31. It tied him with Brooklyn's Gil Hodges for the major league lead. Kiner's first homer came in the seventh inning of the opener and ruined Bubba Church's bid for a hitless 11.

It was the only hit off the Philly righthander who notched his 12th victory. A seven-run eighth inning won the second for the Phils.

Five In Field as Happy's Successor; May Defer Appointment of New Man

New York, Aug. 6 (AP)—It is uncertain that baseball will elect a new commissioner tomorrow, but one thing is certain—if and when he is elected he will face the biggest problem ever confronted by a baseball czar.

The man who succeeds A. B. Chandler must among other things:

1—Represent baseball in the congressional investigation of the game now under way in Washington.

2—Decide what, if anything, can be done about the reserve clause, already under legal attack.

3—Attempt to work out a television and radio policy that will satisfy the minor leagues where attendance has fallen sharply.

4—Deal with the problem raised strongly in the Washington hearings of making the Pacific Coast League a third major league.

The complexity of these problems has caused the 16 major league owners to go slow in choosing a man to replace Chandler. There is a possibility of election will occur tomorrow at their meeting here, but it is much more likely that the field will be cut down to a half dozen and then an intensive scrutiny of each candidate will start.

Five Considered
The "Big Five" considered to have the inside track for the commissionership are: General Douglas MacArthur, James A. Farley, Ford Frick, Warren Giles, and George Trautman. Not one of these has indicated he is interested in or seeking the job, yet these same names crop up in all conversations with baseball leaders.

A confidential poll of the major league club owners made by the Associated Press showed a strong sentiment for deferring any positive action tomorrow, and concentrating instead on narrowing down the choice.

Because baseball wants to get the right man, the salary for the big job probably will be increased to $75,000 yearly. Judge K. M. Landis, the first commissioner, received $50,000. He was elected in 1921. Chandler started at the same pay in 1945 but this was increased to $65,000 a year and one half ago.

The composition of the "Big Five" reflects the argument within baseball over whether a famous national figure or a man thoroughly acquainted with baseball is needed. General MacArthur is a national hero. Farley, formerly postmaster general and now chairman of the board of Coca-Cola, is scarcely less well known.

Ford Frick, president of the National League, is best known of the baseball men. But he is strong support also for Warren Giles, the courtly president of the Cincinnati Reds, and Trautman, boss of the minor leagues.

Hole-in-One Not Uncommon Among Area Golfers Who Are Credited With 34

Although the odds against a hole-in-one are officially set at 10,486 to 1, the ace is not a strange or rare phenomenon among Kingston and area golfers.

A survey reveals that 30 local linksmen are credited with 34 holes-in-one.

Four of this distinguished group are credited with a pair of the dream shots—Judge John M. Cashion, Rodney B. Osterhoudt, Lew Hynes and Jack McCabe.

The remainder of the honor roll is lengthily and distinguished, numbering among others J. Rich-ard Miller, Joe Scott, the tennis shark, Major Hiltbrand, Dr. S. T. Levitas, Jim Dwyer, Matt Herzog, Al Flanagan, Herman Gottfried (now in Margaretville); Dr. Robert McCaig, Roy Vogt.

Also, Ray Le Fevre, George Hughes, J. Watson Bailey, Eddie Barnett, Charles Roth, Alvie Boice, Frank Thompson Sr., Burt Haver, Dr. Rodney Ball, Clarence "Dubby" Raichle, Jimmy Oulton, Dr. Michael Diacovo (at Elkin-nok), Mrs. Edwin O'Reilly, Mrs. Ernest Le Fevre, Mrs. Matthew Hasbrouck and Leafy Le Fevre.

Most of these folks will be on hand for the Freeman's third annual Hole-in-One tournament on Sunday, Aug. 12, at Twaitskill Golf Club.

Middlecoff Cops All-American

Chicago, Aug. 6 (AP)—Cary Middlecoff, hitting one of the hottest stretches of golf in his career, carted off top swag in the first phase of Tam O'Shanter's gold rush and now aims for $12,500 in the "world" meet—the gam's richest payoff.

The 30-year-old Memphis star, who forsook the practice of dentistry to carve a place on the tournament circuit, won Tam's All-American top prize of $2,250 yesterday in a man-to-man battle with Fred Hawkins, 27-year-old pro from El Paso, Tex.

He and the nation's 64 other prime pros enter the "world championship" Thursday.

The high-strung Middlecoff, whose strongest opponent usually is himself as he carries on a personal fight with his game, finished with a pair of 34's for 68. This gave him a total 274—14 strokes under Tam's par—and the All-American first award.

Hawkins' second place 276 was worth $1,400.

Third was Ted Kroll, Purple Heart veteran from New Hartford, N. Y., who finished with 279 and $1,200.

A virtual unknown, John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich., grabbed for fame with a 64-74-138 and the halfway lead, but slipped with two succeeding rounds of 76 and 72. He wound up in a tie for 13th.

Frank Stanahan took the All-American amateur with 286, six strokes ahead of second-place Gardner Dickinson of Dothan, Ala.

Babe Zaharias won the All-American women's tourney for the fourth time, winning $1,000 with a 295—nine under par—and a 10-stroke edge over Betsy Rawls of Austin, Tex.

Maggiacomo Wins Rhinebeck Race
Poughkeepsie's Jocko Maggiacomo continued his blazing trail toward the United Club's seasonal point honors Saturday night with a 50-lap feature stock car victory at the Rhinebeck Speedway.

A large crowd saw Maggiacomo beat off a determined challenge by Bill Foder. Mike Ward was third, followed by Ray Courte, Dee Carlson and Bob Disbrow.

Another 50-lap feature is on tap next Saturday.

Goshen Races
Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 6 (AP)—Grand Circuit racing returns here today for a five-day stand, but the big blowout doesn't come until this is a wide-open affair, with possibly 25 trotters going post-ward. There doesn't seem to be a red-hot favorite, although Betsy Volo, Mighty Fine and Spewib are considered to have as good a chance as any.

Booster Meeting
An organizational meeting of the Booster Bowling League will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at Morgan's Restaurant, 19 Cornell street, Roy Houghtaling announced today. All representatives of last year's teams as well as interested officials of new teams are requested to attend.

Jacoby on Canasta

Only Way to Play Is by Rules

"We have many discussions," writes a Washington, D. C., fan, "about the legality of using an eighth card in a canasta. We know that when the canasta has been made at a previous turn you can add one or more cards to it. But what happens when you must use eight cards to create the canasta?"

"For example, I had melded three kings and two jokers, and the pack became frozen. The player to my right discarded a king, and I had a pair of kings in my hand. If I take the pile and add these three kings to my meld I create an eight-card canasta. Is this a legal play?"

According to the official laws it is perfectly legal to use more than seven cards in a canasta at any time—provided that no more than three wild cards are used. It doesn't matter whether the eight (or ninth, etc.) card appears at the time the canasta is made or whether it is added at a later turn. The play is legal either way.

In the example given by my correspondent, it is quite all right to pick up the discard pile and add all three kings to the meld. It would be equally correct to do so even if the meld on the table contained six cards instead of only five.

On this point, as on so many others, there are some players who prefer to follow a home-made "rule." These players allow only seven cards in a canasta—at any time and under any conditions. In the opinion of all the good players of my acquaintance, this is a very poor rule and almost unplayable.

If you play the seven-card limit rule, it is harder to meld out. You can't add cards to your canastas, so you must discard any extra cards that you happen to draw. Moreover, it is dangerous to get a meld up to the five-card mark, since that gives the opponents a chance to freeze and discard that rank safely.

Like practically all home-made rules this one makes matters difficult for the player who is trying to run up a big score. Most unskillful canasta players want to play for out on every hand and three wild cards either side to have a chance for a big score on any single hand.

Mind you, nobody can object to home-made rules. They're fine for weak players and for family games. Just remember that they're not really the official rules, and don't let anybody tell you that they are.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Washington, Aug. 6 (AP)—Special military teams are making a continuous sweep of Korean battlegrounds to recover and identify the bodies of American soldiers left on the scene. This was disclosed Saturday by Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), chairman of an appropriations subcommittee holding hearings on defense costs. A $350,000 fund for "search and recovery" operations has been asked by the army's quartermaster corps. FBI fingerprint files, scientific experts and Korean laborers are being used in the project.

Safe in Sweden

Stockholm, Aug. 6 (AP)—An East German sailor was safe in Sweden today after jumping off a Soviet zone trawler to escape from communism. The 57-year-old sailor was picked up yesterday by Swedish pilots while swimming midway between Sweden and Denmark. He told authorities two other men had jumped with him. But apparently the others were recaptured. The refugee joins nearly 10,000 others who have fled to Sweden from Communist-ruled countries since the end of the war.

Compared to Premium-priced Gasolines

You get most miles per gallon plus a saving on every tankful with

HIGH-TEST BLUE SUNOCO

YOUR SUNOCO DEALER is a good man to know. You'll find him conscientious, skilled and courteous... expert in giving your car the care it needs.

MOST MILES PER GALLON

Official surveys show that Blue Sunoco has a "higher specific gravity" (weighs more) than practically all premium-priced gasolines. And, as automotive engineers know... this extra weight means extra energy... more mileage. Careful road tests showed that, due to this extra weight and energy, the mileage from high-test Blue Sunoco was unsurpassed by any premium-priced gasolines.

2¢ SAVING PER GALLON

High-test Blue Sunoco sells at regular gas price, which is usually 2 cents a gallon below premium-priced gasolines. In spite of its low price, Blue Sunoco gives you more value because of its outstanding balance of such qualities as anti-rust, quick-starting, anti-stalling, clean burning, long mileage and high-test action.

HERE'S WHAT BLUE SUNOCO USERS SAY:

STUDEBAKER... "I'm sold on Blue Sunoco because it saves me money, gives my car high-test performance and unbeatable mileage."—Ebo Johnson, Miami, Florida.

OLDSMOBILE... "High-test Blue Sunoco has everything I need in a gasoline—top performance, long mileage, low cost."—Erik Sanders, Portland, Maine.

hole-in-One Not Uncommon Among Area Golfers Who Are Credited With 34

Although the odds against a hole-in-one are officially set at 10,000 to 1, the ace is not a strange or rare phenomenon among Kingston and area golfers.

A survey reveals that 30 local linksmen are credited with 34 holes-in-one.

Four of this distinguished group are credited with a pair of the dream shots—Judge John M. Cashin, Rodney B. Osterhoudt, Lew Hynes and Jack McCabe.

The remainder of the honor roll is lengthily and distinguished, numbering among others J. Richard Miller, Joe Scott, the tennis shark, Major Hillebrand, Dr. S. T. Levitas, Jim Dwyer, Matt Herzog, Al Flanagan, Herman Gottfried (now in Margaretville), Dr. Robert McCaig, Roy Vogt.

Also, Ray Le Fevre, George Hughes, J. Watson Bailey, Eddie Barnett, Charles Roth, Alvin Boice, Frank Thompson Sr., Burt Haver, Dr. Rodney Ball, Clarence "Dubby" Raichle, Jimmy Oulton, Dr. Michael Diacovo (at Ekwonok), Mrs. Edwin O'Reilly, Mrs. Ernest Le Fevre, Mrs. Matthew Hasbrouck and Leahy Le Fevre.

Most of these folks will be on hand for the Freeman's third annual Hole-in-One tournament on Sunday, Aug. 12, at Twaalfskill Golf Club.

Open To All
The tournament is open to all bona fide residents of Ulster county, but you do not have to be a member of a golf club in order to compete. There is no entry fee and the Freeman will furnish the balls. Trophies will be awarded to the winner in the male and female divisions.

Last year's event at Wiltwyck attracted nearly 200 players and the 1951 entry list is expected to approach that total.

There are a lot of interesting figures from the years of playing since 1932 in the World-Telly event, the best of its kind staked in the country. This tournament is open only to golfers who have an accredited ace.

Statistical Odds
Of some 64,555 shots hit, 26,505, stayed on the green—or 41 per cent. Thus your chance of getting on the green when you step on the tee of a short hole (measuring 158 yards or less) is about 2 to 5.

Delving further into probabilities, the odds against getting one of the five allotted shots in the birdie circle (10 feet) are 5.82 to 1; against getting two in, 40.73; against getting three in, 300.26 to 1; and against getting four in, 12,911.00 to one.

Only one player in the long history of the W-T tourney ever put four in—Jack Mitchell, a New Jersey pro.

Think you can beat these odds? Why not try it next Sunday at Twaalfskill.

Middlecoff Cops All-American

Chicago, Aug. 6 (AP)—Cary Middlecoff, hitting one of the hottest stretches of golf in his career, carted off top swag in the first phase of Tam O'Shanter's gold rush and now aims for $12,500 in the "world" meet—the game's richest payoff.

The 30-year-old Memphis star, who forsook the practice of dentistry to carve a place on the tournament circuit, won Tam's All-American top prize of $2,250 yesterday in a man-to-man battle with Fred Hawkins, 27-year-old pro from El Paso, Tex.

He and the nation's 64 other prime pros enter the "world championship" Thursday.

The high-strung Middlecoff, whose strongest opponent usually is himself as he carries on a personal fight with his game, finished with a pair of 34's for 68. This gave him a total 274—14 strokes under Tam's par—and the All-American first award.

Hawkins' second place 276 was worth $1,400.

Third was Ted Kroll, Purple Heart veteran from New Hartford, N. Y., who finished with 279 and $1,200.

A virtual unknown, John Barnum of Grand Rapids, Mich., grabbed for fame with a 64-74-138 and the halfway lead, but slipped with two succeeding rounds of 76 and 72. He wound up in a tie for 13th.

Frank Stanahan took the All-American amateur with 286, six strokes ahead of second-place Gardner Dickinson of Dothan, Ala.

Babe Zaharias won the All-American women's tourney for the fourth time, winning $1,000 with a 295—nine under par—and a 10-stroke edge over Betsy Rawls of Austin, Tex.

Maggiacomo Wins Rhinebeck Race

Poughkeepsie's Jocko Maggiacomo continued his blazing trail toward the United Club's seasonal point honors Saturday night with a 50-lap feature stock car victory at the Rhinebeck Speedway.

A large crowd saw Maggiacomo beat off a determined challenge by Bill Foder. Mike Ward was third, followed by Ray Courte, Dee Carlson and Bob Disbrow.

Another 50-lap feature is on tap next Saturday.

Fourteen American towns are named Paris.

Marine Enlistee Honored

Five County Men Now in Training With Marines

Five men from Ulster county, including two from Kingston, recently left for basic training at Parris Island, S. C., as members of the Mid-Hudson Marine Platoon.

The new Kingston marines, part of the total of 29 from the entire Mid-Hudson area, were Elbert D. Hudspeth, of 202 Henry street, and Kenneth E. Peck, of 37 Jan-sen avenue.

Other county men in the platoon contingent were William F. Tripp, Highland; Lester H. Simpson, Highland; and Thomas G. Dougher, Ellenville.

According to Staff Sergeant C. C. Awkerman, Kingston Marine Corps recruiter, all of the men from the Mid-Hudson area will undergo basic training together and will come home together on their 10-day recruit leave.

The contest which was held to name the platoon before its leave for Parris Island was won by Miss Sylvia Alpern, of 101 Renwick street, Newburgh. She won a $25 Defense Bond for submitting the name, the Mid-Hudson Marine Platoon. The platoon will carry this title during its basic training period.

All of the 29 enlistees from the Mid-Hudson area received their oath of enlistment recently with Major T. C. Dutton, USMC, in charge. Many parents and friends of the new Marines witnessed the ceremony.

Through the efforts of the Kingston and Poughkeepsie Detachments of the Marine Corps League a turkey dinner was served by the Women's Auxiliary of the Poughkeepsie Detachment immediately following the enlistment ceremony.

Melville, Kelly Attend
Among the official guests present at the dinner were Al Melville, commandant of the Kingston Detachment of the Marine Corps League and Alderman-at-Large Joe Kelly of Kingston.

Following the dinner, the platoon members were billeted for the night at the Naval Reserve Armory and left the following day for Parris Island.

Police Will Get Union Charter; Fight Develops

New York, Aug. 6 (AP)—A charter for the first police union in New York city's history is scheduled to be issued tomorrow by the CIO Transport Workers Union (527).

TWU President Michael J. Quill, facing opposition to his drive to unionize policemen, state troopers and city correction officers, has stepped up his time schedule. Previously, he had set a vague "before Labor Day" date for forming a police local. Quill claims 3,200 members of the 19,000-man city police force already have signed TWU membership cards, and thousands more are ready to do so. He plans to ask Police Commissioner George P. Monaghan for "direct recognition" of the local and its demands, a TWU spokesman said. Monaghan has said he will not recognize any TWU police local. The policemen's complaints include long hours at low pay, heavy pension contributions and poor working conditions.

John E. Carton, president of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association (PBA) here, yesterday called Quill an "opportunist."

Carton, a bitter foe of Quill in the fight over representation of police, said the TWU campaign would be beaten here and throughout the state.

Carton, who also is president of the Police Conference of the State of New York, said the 194 PBA units in the state will be asked to vote on a resolution condemning Quill's unionization drive. The vote is scheduled to be taken at the four-day annual convention of the conference at White Plains starting next Monday.

Carton said the policemen's six-day, 48-hour week has made the force ripe for unionism. He blamed "power politics" for "sabotaging" a 40-hour police work bill in Albany for two years. He said a 40-hour week by state law is "the answer" to the Quill unionization drive. Carton urged that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey take the initiative to get the work week cut.

McCarran Declares Reds Have Access To Nation's Secrets

Washington, Aug. 6 (AP)—Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) says a Senate investigation has revealed that "Communist agents and sympathizers have ready access to the nation's most jealously guarded defense and diplomatic secrets." McCarran made this charge yesterday in a statement accompanying a progress report on "subversive infiltration in the telegraph industry." The report was made by the Senate Internal Security subcommittee of which McCarran is chairman.

It said members of a union expelled from the CIO for following the Communist line still have ready access to secret defense and diplomatic messages moving by telegraph and cable.

The report added that there is danger of interception of messages and possible sabotage of vital communications facilities in case of war.

Included in the report was testimony the committee heard in closed-door sessions here and in New York during May and June. Witnesses said seven officers of the American Communications Association (ACA), including International President Joseph P. Selly, were Communists or former Communists.

Expelled From CIO
The ACA, an independent union, was expelled from the CIO in the spring of 1950 on the ground that it followed the Communist line.

Selly and the other ACA officers named in the report refused to tell the committee whether they are or have been Communist party members.

The ACA, with 9,000 to 10,000 members, has labor contracts with Western Union and other communications companies which handle government as well as private messages. The report touched only briefly on the fact that most if not all secret messages move in code and would have to be broken down by interceptors.

The subcommittee recommended legislation to prevent any organization found by the government to be Communist controlled from being certified as a workers' bargaining agent.

It also recommended that its hearing record be turned over to the attorney general as a basis for possible perjury prosecution of the ACA officers who signed non-Communist affidavits but who were named by witnesses as Communists.

Woman Is Arrested On Firearms Charge

Mrs. Lylah Hardy, 27, was arrested by state police Sunday morning for alleged illegal possession of a concealable firearm following complaints of her neighbors that she was shooting it in the vicinity of her home in Marlborough.

Troopers said Mrs. Hardy was shooting her .32 caliber revolver into the air, but was not aiming at anything in particular.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Ralph E. Clark, Mrs. Hardy waived examination and was ordered held for grand jury action on the charge, an indictable misdemeanor. Bail was set at $100.

language is stupid for, contrary to superstition, the baseball fan is a dull fellow with only a few unusual expressions which he has heard or read somewhere. Nowadays he takes off his shirt and even, in many cases, his undershirt and is a repulsive discredit to the nation whose spirit he is supposed to express. He justifies his offensive conduct as "democracy," which it probably is, proving, again, that democracy is an evil to be resisted. In Brooklyn, loud, coarse and vulgar conduct and a dialect suggesting illiteracy have come to be regarded as the true standard of a city which is, on the contrary, more intellectual than Paris. The Brooklyn ball-players are distinctly superior in all respects to the standard suggested by the "fans," but the legend which they represent has given the borough a bad name all over.

The preoccupation with baseball which clutters the minds of thousands of persons on whom the expensive services of the American "educational" system have been wasted, is a disgrace which they should believe to be a pleasant foible. During the hard Korean fighting of this very year the fatuous cackle of baseball broadcasters went over the air clear to the Gulf and the Pacific and was devoured in junks and public offices while news of the war was scarce and trite and had to be caught on the instant. Any non-professional person who can boast of knowing the batting averages and earned-run records of the first half dozen hitters and pitchers in the major leagues is obviously incapable of useful thought and unworthy of citizenship. There are at least a million of these in Chicago alone.

Enthusiasm Marks Quartet Concert

Woodstock, Aug. 6—A member of the audience which attended the concert presented by the Woodstock String Quartet Thursday night at the Town Hall, was overheard to remark: "This has been a soul satisfying concert!"

From the general enthusiasm shown by the audience, it would appear that everyone present thoroughly agreed with the statement. With four fine artists, Sidney Harth, violinist; Teresa Testa, violinist; Carolyn Voigt, violinist; and Engelbert Roentgen, cellist, blending together to present an engrossing evening of music, a fine balance was achieved throughout an excellent and varied program.

The Smetana String Quartet, From My Life was in turn exciting, tender, a colorful music story. For the second number Harth and Miss Carroll presented the seldom played Duo for Piano and Violin in A Major, by Schubert. Because of the difficulties of interpretation, few violinists attempt to play the work, but Harth displayed all the delicacy of touch required of the composition. Since the piano is not subordinate to the violin Miss Carroll contributed to its complete success in performance with her usual faultless technique.

Appealing to the emotions, the Barber String Quartet, Opus 11, was given an enthusiastic reception. The adagio was especially appealing and beautifully played.

William Kroll's four delightful Characteristic Pieces for String Quartet, concluded the program. Little March conjured up a row of toy soldiers on parade, all lined up to the end to finish with the famous tumble-down. Both the Cossack and the Ancient (based on a Hebrew theme) were vivid music pictures, and the final Magyar won such a round of applause that the musicians upon popular demand, repeated the number.

Another outstanding concert was given at the Town Hall Thursday, August 9, at 8:30 p. m. under the auspices of the Woodstock String Quartet, when Yvonne and Joseph Druihan will appear in a joint recital for piano and cello.

Yvonne Druihan made her initial appearance with the quartet July 14, 1950. During the season she also played privately for her many Woodstock friends, who have commented upon her superb artistry.

Joseph Druihan, one of the outstanding cellists of the younger generation, will make his first appearance here. His technical skill has been, acclaimed as extraorand roar had been a problem down to then.

Incidentally, prizefighting was illegal throughout the country with the strange spotty exceptions of New Orleans, Philadelphia, St. Louis and the Twin Cities, and it had always been a rough, low racket from which the gent, down to then, was excluded. Under the influence of Tex Rickard, starting with the Dempsey-Carpentier show in Jersey City, which was a farcical fight but a social gala, the feminine influence began to be felt in the blood-letting phase of professional sport. It did make briefly for refinement but probably for the sole reason that the gent, down to then, was for some time thereafter, were put uneasily on their manners. In time, however, the brass began to holler and carry on like bums so the order "as you was" ran silently through the ranks of the bucks and the restraint vanished.

A similar spiritual phenomenon was noted in Washington when Eleanor Roosevelt's friend, Frances Perkins, was appointed secretary of labor. Many a knob-fisted old thief in the union racket with cactus bristles on a porcine neck had to go outside to do his swearing and this was thought to be a dirty Wall Street plot to embarrass the agents of the overworked and underpaid. As the female politician grew in numbers, however, this delicacy was seen to be absurd and the prevailing idiom in mixed company today is a fluent jargon of the foulest clichés of the dirty-word novels and the Kinsey report peeled of the Greek and Latin euphemisms.

Also included in the show are: Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Siegel, Christian Caillard's Dancers, Joseph Hecht engraving, Wasily Kandinsky's Abstraction, Henri Matisse's head, George Grosz lithograph, Georges Rouault's Crucifixion, Yves Tangay's color etching, Picasso's Three Graces, Derain's head; Andree Ruellan, Maurice Stern's figure, Emil Ganso's Nude, Adolph Dehn's The Park, Jean Cocteau's Le Vitrier de Vaques; John Taylor, Pablo Picasso's Head in Profile and Head, Karl Hofer's Clown and two heads.

The following members of the committee for the Artists Association arranged and organized the show: Hermon More, Yasuo Kuniyoshi, Eugene Speicher, Arnold Blanch, Sigmund Menkes, Doris Lee, Ralph Wickiser, William Pachner, John Taylor, William J. The show will be on view until August 15.

Woodstock, Aug. 6—A true globe-trotting artist, Mal Slonin, has brought a tempting and enviable record of her travels to the Town House, with the opening of her one-man show of paintings Friday afternoon.

An avid traveler since she was 19 years of age, Miss Slonin has trained her artist's eye and busy brush on many corners of the world, a warm and appealing scene of a native village in Samoa, a softly tinted spring in New England, a rugged Vermont landscape, or a study of a hummingbird in Guatemala.

From tropics to colder climes, Miss Slonin treats with equal ease, a scene along the Yukon in Alaska, a pier in Provincetown and a portrait of a Blackfoot Indian youth. Miss Slonin also is showing a number of engaging still lifes.

From the Fiji Islands to Hawaii, from Vermont to the Yukon, the artist has clearly had a wonderful and certainly productive series of journeys.

The exhibition will remain at the Town House to Aug. 16.

McCarran Declares Reds Have Access To Nation's Secrets

Washington, Aug. 6 (AP)—Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) says a Senate investigation has revealed that "Communist agents and sympathizers have ready access to the nation's most jealously guarded defense and diplomatic secrets." McCarran made this charge yesterday in a statement accompanying a progress report on "subversive infiltration in the telegraph industry." The report was from the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee of which McCarran is chairman.

It said members of a union expelled from the CIO for following the Communist line still have ready access to secret defense and diplomatic messages moving by telegraph and cable.

The report added that there is danger of interception of messages and possible sabotage of vital communications facilities in case of war.

Included in the report was testimony of the committee heard in closed-door sessions here and in New York during May and June. Witnesses said seven officers of the American Communications Association (ACA), including international President Joseph P. Selly, were Communists or former Communists.

Expelled From CIO
The ACA, an independent union, was expelled from the CIO in the spring of 1950 on the ground that it followed the Communist line.

Selly and the other ACA officers named in the report refused to tell the committee whether they are or have been Communist party members.

The ACA, with 9,000 to 11,000 members, has labor contracts with Western Union and other communications companies which handle government as well as private messages. The report touched briefly on the fact that most of its secret messages move in code and would have to be broken down by interceptors.

The subcommittee recommended legislation to prevent any organization found by the government to be Communist controlled from being certified as a workers' bargaining agent.

It also recommended that its hearing record be turned over to the attorney general as a basis for possible perjury prosecution of the ACA officers who signed non-Communist affidavits but who were named by witnesses as Communists.

Woman Is Arrested On Firearms Charge
Mrs. Lylah Hardy, 27, was arrested by state police Sunday morning for alleged illegal possession of a concealable firearm following complaints of her neighbors that she was shooting it in the vicinity of her home in Marlborough.

Troopers said Mrs. Hardy was shooting her .32 caliber revolver into the air, but was not aiming at anything in particular.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace Ralph E. Clark, Mrs. Hardy waived examination and was ordered held for grand jury action on the charge, an indictable misdemeanor. Bail was set at $100.

Enthusiasm Marks Quartet Concert
Woodstock, Aug. 6—A member of the audience which attended the concert presented by the Woodstock String Quartet Thursday night at the Town Hall was overheard to remark: "This has been a soul satisfying concert!"

From the general enthusiasm shown by the audience, it would appear that everyone present thoroughly agreed with the statement. With four fine artists, Sidney Harth, violinist; Teresa Tedeschi, violinist; Carolyn Voigt, violinist, and Engelbert Roegen, cellist, blending together to present an engrossing evening of music, a fine balance was achieved throughout an excellent and varied program.

The Smetana String Quartet, From My Life was in turn exciting, tender, a colorful music story. For the second number Harth and Miss Carroll presented the seldom played Duo for Piano and Violin in A Major, by Schubert. Because of the difficulties of interpretation, few violinists attempt to play the work, but Harth displayed all the delicacy of touch required of the composition. Since the piano is not subordinate to the violin, Miss Carroll contributed to its complete success in performance with her usual faultless technique.

Appealing to the emotions, the Barber String Quartet Opus 11, was given an enthusiastic reception. The Adagio was especially appealing and beautifully played.

William Kroll's four delightful Characteristic Pieces for String Quartet, concluded the program. Little March conjured up a row of toy soldiers on parade, all lined up at the end to finish with the famous tumble-down. Both the Cossack and the Ancient (based on a Hebrew theme) were vivid music pictures, and the final Magyar won such a round of applause that the musicians upon popular demand, repeated the number.

Another outstanding concert will be given at the Town Hall Thursday, August 9, at 8:30 p. m. under the auspices of the Woodstock String Quartet, when Yvonne and Joseph Druihan will appear in a joint recital of piano and cello.

Yvonne Druihan made her initial appearance with the quartet July 14, 1950. During the season she also played privately for her many friends in the area, who have commented upon her superb artistry. Joseph Druihan, one of the outstanding cellists of the younger generation, will make his first appearance here. His technical skill has been, acclaimed as extraorlanguage is stupid for, contrary to superstition, the baseball fan is a dull fellow with only a few unusual expressions which he has heard or read somewhere. Nowadays he takes off his shirt and even, in many cases, his undershirt and is a repulsive discreditor to the nation whose spirit he is supposed to express. He justifies his offensive conduct as "democracy," which it probably is, but he is against the democracy is an evil to be resisted. In Brooklyn, loud, coarse and vulgar conduct and a dialect suggesting illiteracy have come to be regarded as the true standard of a city which, on the contrary, more intellectual than Paris. The Brooklyn ball-players are distinctly superior in all respects to the standard suggested by the "fans," but the legend which they represent has given the borough a bad name all over.

The preoccupation with baseball which clutters the minds of thousands of persons on whom the expense services of the American "educational" system have been wasted, is a disgrace which they stupidly believe to be a pleasant foible. During the hard Korean fighting of this very year the fatuous cackle of baseball broadcasters went over the air clear to the Gulf and the Pacific and was devoured in jocks and public places while news of the war was scarce and trite and had to be caught on the instant. Any non-professional person who can boast of knowing the batting averages and earned-run records of the first half dozen hitters and pitchers in the major leagues is obviously incapable of useful thought and thereby of citizenship. There are at least a million of these in Chicago alone. (Copyright, 1951, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

dinary, his tone warm and resonant, his phrasing perfect. A performance of masterworks by two such fine performers assures an exceptionally fine concert.

Works by Beethoven and Brahms will be presented and each of the artists will play solos.

Mal Slonin Opens New One-Man Show

Woodstock, Aug. 6—A true globe-trotting artist, Mal Slonin, has brought a tempting and enviable record of her travels to the Town House, with the opening of her one-man show of paintings Friday afternoon.

An avid traveler since she was 19 years of age, Miss Slonin has trained her artist's eye and busy brush on many corners of the world, a warm and appealing scene of a native village in Samoa, a softly tinted spring in New England, a rugged Vermont landscape, or a study of a hummingbird in Guatemala.

From tropics to colder climes, Miss Slonin treats with equal ease, a scene along the Yukon in Alaska, a pier in Provincetown and a portrait of a Blackfoot Indian youth. Miss Slonin also is showing a number of engaging still lifes.

From the Fiji Islands to Hawaii, from Vermont to the Yukon, the artist has clearly had a wonderful and certainly productive series of journeys.

The exhibition will remain at the Town House to Aug. 16.
